EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

THE Republican majority in Maine exceeds 20,000.

MISS CARRIE ASTOR, the only one of that wealthy family who remains single, is said to be afraid to marry imagining all her suitors to be after her wealth.

MR. CLEVELAND procured a substitute to go to war for him, and he would do well to procure another substitute as a suitable Presidential candidate.

THE Democratic journals which told us a week or so ago that Mr. Blaine was sick are informed that Mr. Blaine's state seems to be pretty robust, thank you.

SENATOR J. DON. CAMERON spent all of last week at the National Committee headquarters, aiding them with his counsels and the work of organization.

THE Irish-Americans in the cities of Maine, where the labor vote is organized, voted for the Republican State ticket, so that Protection and not religion is the reason behind their change.

THE Democratic watchword is "Cleveland, Hendricks and Reform." Wouldn't it be much more forcible if it were turned around and made to read, "Reform Cleveland and Hendricks?" They both need it—one morally and the other politically.

CONGRESSMAN REED, of Maine, scored a decisive triumph in the late elections, being elected by a majority of 915, when the Democrats confidently expected his defeat. As our Democratic friends read the returns let them not forget this important fact about Reed.

THE Watchman says that during the war all who did not think just as Mr. Love did were "traitors," "thieves" and "assassins," and means to insinuate that they were so in his opinion. We do not hesitate to say that during the war or since, Mr. Love never gave expression to epithets, and denunciations against those who differed from him politically half so severe, as did others, whom the Democracy of Centre have delighted to honor with high office repeatedly.

A VALUABLE essay on the subject of the destruction of forests and the increase of disastrous floods was read before the convention of scientists in Philadelphia only a few days ago. Among the evil results which will follow will be destruction of rich top soil, especially if crops of the same kind follow each other in successive years. Remedies suggested were the increase of lakes on elevated places, planting of trees along all streams and railroads, and the cultivation of forests at all possible points, especially on the broad prairies.

Our Legislative Candidates.

The Watchman seems to be somewhat alarmed lest a great many of the thinking Democrats of the county may assert their independence and manhood, and vote according to the dictates of their better judgment, and rebuke to some extent at least the action of the "Bellefonte Ring" in placing in nomination a number of unsavory democratic nominees. The Watchman therefore in last week's issue cracks the party whip, and attempts by falsehood and misrepresentation to dragoon Democrats in to the support of the Ring ticket. It makes a false attack upon Mr. Love, one of our candidates whose fitness, ability and qualifications for the legislative office it frankly admits. In its editorial columns in speaking of Mr. Love it says, "During the war all who did not think just as he did were 'traitors', 'copperheads', 'thieves', and 'assassins.'" During a greater part of the war Mr. Love was a youth at home in the country working on his father's farm and at the same time endeavoring to educate himself. Not being a voter be took comparatively little part in politics. He came to Bellefonte in 1867, was admitted to the Bar at August term of that year. He made no political speeches until the campaign of 1868 when he canvassed the county, and has been heard very generally all over the county by both Republicans and Democrats in every campaign since. So that during the war the editor of the Watchman never heard Mr. Love express his political opinions, nor never heard him use the epithets he imputes to him. The statement is therefore wholly false.

Nor has Mr. Love in his discussion of political questions indulged in vile personal epithets.

The Watchman must have accidentally unearthed some of its old files, published about 1862 and 1863. When its columns were replete with epithets demoninating all union soldiers without regard to their politics,as"Lincoln Hirelings," "Chicken thieves," and denominated the lamented Lincoln himself an'Assassin.' We venture to say that Mr. Love during the war, nor since has ever made use of denunciation against those who differed from him politically any more severe than did Leonard Rhone, who then was a republican, and whose democracy had scarcely been christened, let alone tested by a reasonable probation, until the ring put him in nomination for legislative honors, and did so by breaking in upon the time honored custom of the democratic party, in limiting their former members to but a single term of office instead of two terms. The ring might just as well have kicked overboard James McClain and Frank P. Bible at the end of their first term as to have discarded Hon. B. F. Hunter and Meyer. Our legislative candidates are good men and in every way qualified for the office. The nominations were unsought by them, and their records are clean. They have made no bargans, nor can any falsehoods, nor false insinuations made by the Watchman deter good citizens from voting for them.

MISS MOROSINI, the beautiful and fascinating daughter of a New York broker, who resides in Yonkers, N. Y., ran away the other day with her father's coachman and was married to him. Of course, the friends of the young lady are greatly incensed and mortified. The coachman husband is said to be of superior intelligence, fine appearance and by some is believed to a German baron in disguise. They are both of full legal age to marry and as they are said to have gone to Canada, it is not probable that any legal measures can separate them unless they weary of each other.

IT is safe to say that Maria Halpin was interested in the news from Maine.

Is this What You Want?

When the "Maine music" came over the wire this morning everybody and their friends in Bellefonte rejoiced. Fifteen thousand is at least 3,000 greater than the Daily News dared hope.—Daily News.

We heard the "Maine music" but the refrain was the same old tune. The Mulligan" Guards, with a "Guano contract" chorus, and an occasional "Little Rock" solo thrown in. Well as "Jeemes"skulked the temperance question, we suppose our friend of the News will rise to explain—why "this thusness."—Centre Democrat.

A few of the above quoted words refer to falsehoods which have been told of James G. Blaine, and we suppose those are what the Democrat desires us to "explain." The Democrat is usually a fair journal but it does itself injustice by referring to these exploded stories,which only the depraved morals of Democrats have invented and which are not given a second thought by any fair-minded people.

As to the Mulligan letters. James G. Blaine has denied, on his oath, the statement made by James Mulligan. All the letters are on record in the Congressional reports and of the charges made against Mr. Blaine in this connection not one can be proved.

The Little Rock and Fort Smith Railroad bill passed both Senate and House, without a dissenting vote. Before it passed an amendment was attached to it, which, in the opinion of the most competent congressman, was not considered germane to the bill. General Logan, who was then in Congress, rose to the point of order,and Blaine, as speaker,sustained it and the bill passed without the amendment, in April, 1869. All the bonds of the Little Rock road which Mr. Blaine obtained possession of, eighty days after Congress adjourned, he paid full price for. This is confirmed by Hon. Wm. Walter Phelps, congressman from New Jersey, who had personal knowledge of it. We believe it was of this charge that the late Judge Jeremiah Black, of Pennsylvania, for years one of the foremost leaders of the Democratic party, and one of the keenest of lawyers, remarked: "Mr. Blaine's letter proved that the charge was not only untrue, but impossible, and would continue so to prove until the Gregorian Calendar could be turned around and October made to precede April in the stately procession of the year."

We advise the nice little Bible man of the Democrat to treat these charges with the contempt they deserve. Blaine's life has been active and prominent. He has a few cranky enemies, as had all the great men in the world, but their charges fall from him like water from a duck's back and only expose them to contempt.

In regard to the temperance question, Blaine did not hesitate to speak the words in an article printed in Tursday's issue and they are bold and brave,and will be approved even by Prohibitionists and whisky men alike. If the Democrat desires further explanation it shall have it.

THE Democrats are so good and and generous. They were willing to give the Republicans the most unlimited triumph in Maine. As it was, the Republicans elected a Governor by almost 20,000 majority, elected every Senator, four-fifths of the members of the legislature and all the Congressmen, winning the greatest victory for the past eighteen years. "That's not enough," says the Democrat; "you should have had 25,000 majority." Well, dear Democratic friend; that's just what we will have next November. According to the logic you bring to bear upon the question just now, however; it will not be sufficient for the Republicans to carry every State in the Union at the November election, but they must also carry England, Ireland and Wales.

VERMONT did well, Maine has done better, next come Ohio, Iowa and West Virginia.

Mrs. Morrill's Memory.

It is impossible to ascertain just how much of the story in regard to the letter sent by certain Republican politicians of Ohio to the widow of the late Senator Lot M. Morrill is correct, but facts recently developed show that much of it is false and is used by the Democracy for lack of better campaign material. We will take, for example, the letter sent to Mrs. Morrill, which the Watchman says is the following:

SENATOR LOT M. MORRILL:

Dear Sir—The situation in Ohio is a critical one. The party is in trouble on account of the attacks on Mr. Blaine as a candidate of the party. Your well known character as a pure and upright statesman, and coming from Blaine's own State, you can refute the charges as no one else can. We hope you will come to us in this emergency, and make as many speeches as possible.

Compare this letter with the following which is a correct copy of the one actually sent:

"DEAR SIR: It is quite evident that the campaign in Ohio this year will be an exceedingly active and important one. Already many requests have been made by the local committee throughout the State for speakers. To comply with these requests, and believing you can render us valuable assistance in our campaign and aid us greatly in securing a rousing Republican victory in October, we extend you a cordial invitation to speak for us. The speaking campaign will begin about the 1st of September, the election being held Oct. 14; so please indicate to this committee when you can join us, and how much time you can give. Should you be kind enough to accept an invitation, we shall endeavor to give you such appointments as will prove acceptable to you and beneficial to our cause. Hoping to hear from you at your earliest opportunity, we remain, very respectifully yours,

"JOHN F. OGLEVEE, Chairman,
"JOSHUA K. BROWN, Secretary."

It will be observed that the letter actually sent contained no reference to the critical situation in Ohio, no reference to trouble on account of attacks on Mr. Blaine, no mention, direct or indirect, of Mr. Blaine, no compliment to Mr. Morrill's character as a "pure and upright statesman," no expression of confidence in his ability to refute the charges against Mr. Blaine—nothing, in fact, but a general request that applied to the case of any Republican speaker in the United States.

As to the reply which the Watchman quotes Mrs. Morrill as having sent to Ohio, none has yet been received by the Republicans there, and we understand that the good lady is deeply mortified over the use being made of the occurrence by the Democratic papers.

IT is no wonder that the colored voters have arranged themselves solidly in the Republican ranks for the present campaign. The question of candidates, if nothing more, should determine such action on their part. Mr. Hendricks' record as a negro hater is notorious, and when over and above his pro-slavery attitude previous to the war, colored voters are informed that he opposed in 1863 a bill to abolish the coastwise slave trade, voted in the following year against giving colored soldiers the same pay as white, and permitting negroes equal rights in the courts, they have learned enough to emphasize their hostility to the party which he represents.

IT is said that the Republican campaign work is better organized in Wisconsin than in almost any other State in the Union. An immense quantity of judicious literature is being circulated there, and the letters received at headquarters show great interest and activity all over the State. Chairman Taylor hopes to reclaim three Congressional districts, besides giving a handsome majority for the Republican National and State tickets.

IT is about time there should be another speech or address or proclamation or statement from the sentimental and rhetorical gentlemen who have been misusing the good old word independent.

A Ridiculous Position.

Grover Cleveland, says the Pittsburg Commercial Gazette, now occupies a most absurd position with respect to the tariff—more ridiculous even than that which General Hancock assumed four years ago. The party faced both ways in its platform, and when the candidate came to accept the nomination he was careful not to discuss the tariff at all, but to indorse the party "principles" in a general way.

Then came the damaging revelations of Mr. Nelson, the private Secretary of Speaker Carlisle, who declares that when the Morrison bill was before the House, Cleveland wrote several letters urging his personal and political friends to support that measure. This is exactly in the line of Mr Cleveland's previous career, as he has always been known as a Free Trader, himself boasting that he has ever been true to Democratic principles.

The effect of this new light as to Cleveland's real sentiments is so damaging in New York, New Jersey and other manufacturing States, that leading Democratic papers frantically denounce Nelson as an "unmitigated liar," and declare that no such letters were written by Cleveland.

These dishonest tactics have aroused the indignation of Free Traders like Mr. Watterson, who do not scruple to maintain that Mr. Nelson's character for veracity, and to accuse his assailants as cowardly shirkers who ought to be at better business than to "suggest doubts as to Mr. Cleveland's loyalty to the party." These artful dodgers are warned against the folly of again attempting a change of front in the face of the enemy, which can only result in disaster.

It is difficult to perceive how a candidate could occupy a more ridiculous position than that now held by Mr. Cleveland on the tariff. It is enough in and of itself to drag him down to defeat.

WHERE is the aggressive campaign that the Democracy was going to make? So far the campaign on the part of the Democracy has been an effort to keep some of their prominent leaders from bolting the party on account of their detestation of Cleveland. Grady, one of the most promineni leaders in the State of New York, within a few days has come out flat footed for Blaine and Logan. Purcell some time ago declined to be a Cleveland elector. The rank and file of the Democracy are in open revolt in New York. Kelly is doing nothing whatever, and the promised aggressive campaign is as tame and halting as a campaign possible could be, and the Democratic party keep together at all. Butler was a prominent delegate to the Democratic National Convention. He is against Cleveland and for himself. Won't some Democrat please rise and explain what has become of their promised aggressive campaign?

IT is entirely safe to say that Samuel J. Tilden has ten dollars where Mr. Blaine has one, and that his princely mansion in Gramercy Park, and his country seat at Greystone, cost ten times as much as did the Republican candidate's Washington residence. And yet, in 1876 the Democrats would not have admitted that his wealth was a sufficient reason for defeating him,nor did Republicans ever think of circulating pictures of his houses as a campaign documents. And if all reports be true, much of Mr. Tilden's gains were of the kind that never prosper.

THE Republican majority in Maine was the largest since 1868. It was noticed that wherever a bolting Independent Republican had delivered a Democratic speech during the campaign the majority was unusually large. We regret that the bolting orators are not sufficiently numerous to spread themselves out through all the States.

Poetry.

"WHERE ARE THE COMING MEN?"

ANNIE A. PRESTON.

Dear Aunt Mary asked this question,
Then glancing up at Ben,
Who a fine cigar was rolling,
She asked it o'er again.

"For smokers, now, we need not search,
We find them nine in ten.
There are swearers, too, and loafers—
Where shall we look for men?

"Good men must come from somewhere soon,
To run the church and town;
For these we have are growing old,
And must of course go down.

"These growing boys. They will not do!
They swear, and smoke, and fight.
Dear me! must we then send abroad
For men who serve the right?"

The boys all looked surprised enough.
"We'll think of this!" said Ben,
"I'll tell you, lads, we'll mend our ways;
We'll be the coming men."

A QUESTION.

Joy comes and goes, hope ebbs and flows
Like the wave;
Change does unknit the tranquil strength of men.
Love lends life a little grace,
A few sad smiles, and then
Both are laid in one cold place,
In the grave.

Dreams dawn and fly, friends smile and die
Like spring flowers;
Our vaunted life is one long funeral.
Men dig graves with bitter tears
For their dead hopes; and all
Mazed with doubts and sick with fears
Count the hours.

We count the hours. These dreams of hours
False and hollow.
Do we go hence and find they are not dead?
Joys we dimly apprehend,
Faces that smiled and fled,
Hopes born here, and born to end.
Shall we follow?

MATTHEW ARNOLD.

THE CHINESE PUZZLE.

O bring me a map of the seat of the war!
I hear the guns on the river Min!
I want to see where the missiles tore
Through far Foo-chow with a devil's din.

Just show me Ke-lung and Sinen-choo;
And where, O where is Kin-te-ching,
Chow-choo, Chag-chow, and where Cha-oo?
Is Hing-wha far from Yen-ping?

I yearn to know of Hic-chic-chin;
I long to see the high Nan-ling;
However will the French get in
To Kiang-si or view Toong-ting?

So, bring me a map of the seat of war!
I want to learn while the fight is young;
And while I am looking for one name more,
I'll pray for the ladies of great Quang-tung.

BETWEEN ACTS.

Dear little fluttering hands,
Sweet little sensitive mouth—
Heart as warm as the sands
Of a desert during the drouth.

Laugh as rippling and sweet
As a brook or nightingale's lay;
Such eyes! such hair! and such feet
To dance the glad hours away!

Hair!—a rich golden brown—
Eyes!—liquid sapphires to me—
Teeth!—kings might barter a crown
For such pearls from a tropical sea!

That was your mother, my dear,
Twenty-five summers ago.
She was my sweetheart a year—
"Will I wait and see papa?" Well, no!

Our Story Teller.

Minnie's Lovers.

"For my part," said Aunt Sylvia, "I don't admire the young man."

Minnie Dartford's pretty head drooped slightly, and she thought within herself how little of the sympathetic element existed between old maid aunts and 17-year-old nieces, and wondered if there ever had been a time when Aunt Sylvia, too, was young, with the fresh electric current of love stirring in her pulses.

Minnie Dartford was a hazel-eyed, rose-cheeked little witch, with perfectly arched eye-brows, a mouth as fresh as the freshest rosebud in all the garden bowers, and her white dress, shining faintly through the summer twilight, seemed to float round her like a cloud, as she sat there, watching the stars that glimmered indistinctly through the purple deeps of the sky, and thinking how very unreasonable Aunt Sylvia was.

"No," said the elder lady, jerking her knitting-needle into its sheath with an emphasis, "I do not fancy Herbert Arundel!"

"He is our guest, Aunt Sylvia."

"You are mistaken there, Minnie. He came here uninvited, with your brother's friend, Mr. Lee."

"But now that he is here, Aunt, we must treat him with courtesy."

"I've no objection in life to treating him with courtesy, child; but I've a sort of an idea that he would like us to treat him with something warmer and more enthusiastic!"

How thankful Minnie Dartford was at that moment to the friendly dusk which veiled the crimson blushes that suffused brow and cheek at Aunt Sylvia's cleverly-aimed random shot.

Had it then come to that? Was she, indeed, learning to love Herbert Arundel? And a thrill of strange, inexpressible happiness eddied through her heart, as her inmost consciousness mutely answered:

"Yes."

Alas! poor Clarence Lee! The patient years of devotion, during which he had waited for the rosebud of Minnie Dartford's beauty to expand into the perfect blossom of womanhood—the loyal love, the unfaltering constancy—how lightly they weighed in the balance against this Southern stranger's easy address and dashing fascination of manner. The way of the world—unalterable, yet how strange!

Aunt Sylvia listened for an answer but none came. Minnie hardly knew what reply it would be best to frame.

"I think, Minnie," said the old lady, after a moment or two of silence, "that it would be better for you to accept Antonia Wyllis' invitation to spend the month of September at her home. It will at least separate you from the companionship of this young man, and ——"

"But I don't want to be separated from him, Aunt Sylvia."

Minnie spoke with spirit and energy, and the color deepened visibly on her cheek.

"Minnie!"

"Aunt Sylvia!"

"Has it gone so far as this?"

"I don't know what you mean by 'it,'" responded the girl, biting her lips; "but I do know, Aunt Sylvia, that I shall not run away from Mr. Arundel as if I feared some strange contagion in his presence. This is my home, and here I shall remain to entertain my brother's guests as best I may!"

"Irrespective of consequences?"

"Yes; entirely irrespective of consequences."

Aunt Sylvia remonstrated no further; she saw quite plainly that it would be of no use. Minnie, like many another spoiled child and petted beauty, was determined to have her own way.

Aunt Sylvia was no logician; neither did she pretend to the magical powers of vision belonging to the "seventh daughter of the seventh daughter;" but she knew quite enough of human nature in its various manifestations to be sure that Herbert Arundel was unworthy to wear a jewel like Minnie Dartford's love upon his heart.

"An empty, feather-brained fool, with no more heart than a stone image!" was Aunt Sylvia's inward verdict. Nor was it altogether incorrect.

Meanwhile Minnie, with her thoughts and fancies drifting away upon the fathomless sea of a young girl's reverie, sat at the window, still thinking of one personage—Herbert Arundel.

"Aunt Sylvia is foolishly prejudiced," she thought. "He is as true and noble as he is handsome, and none but the carping and envious could pick a flaw in his character or demeanor. As if I would go to Antonia Wyllis' and leave him here! How graceful he looked on the 'croquet ground' yesterday—and how well he rides! Yes, it is true that the children of the South are endued with a chivalrous grace and knightly ease which are lacking in the sons of the colder and less loyal-hearted North. I wonder if I shall ever see Magnolia Dell, that sunny home of his which he describes so eloquently. I don't think it is altogether impossible, for I think—yes, I am quite sure—he loves me. His lips have never spoken words to that effect, but there is a language of eye and manner, and——"

Minnie's mind was so absorbed in these fancies, when a knock came to the door, and the old housekeeper put her head into the room.

"Miss Minnie, the sheets is ready for the linen closet!"

"The sheets!" Minnie shrugged her shoulders a little impatiently. Why couldn't old Peggy have waited? "Very well, Peggy, I'll see to that presently!"

"But they ought to be put away now, miss," persisted the obdurate old servant. "I've strewed sprigs of lavender and dried rose leaves between all the folds, and if you'd please to put them on the shelves now—"

Minnie rose with a scarcely suppressed sigh. She knew Peggy too well to hope for any peace until her behests were fulfilled.

The heap of snowy linen lay on the hall table, white and fragrant through the toils of Peggy's skilled digits, and, taking a pile on her arm, Minnie Dartford went to the linen-closet, a small room, opening out on that allotted to the present occupation of Clarence Lee and Mr. Herbert Arundel.

She glanced timidly in before she entered, to make sure that neither of her brother's guests were in the apartment, and then hurried through to place the linen in its nook.

She had scarcely reached up to deposit the piles on the high shelf above her head, when voices and footsteps fell on her ear. With a palpitating heart, Minnie felt that she was like a caged bird among the shelves, laden with sheets and pillow-cases. Mr. Arundel had entered his room—the spicy odor of his cigar already proclaimed the fact to her olfactories, even were there no other witnesses, and with him a stranger had been ushered in.

Minnie stood quite still, hoping that their incursion was but for a moment, and their withdrawal would presently leave her free to beat a retreat. The door of the closet was partially drawn to, and she was at least sure of not being discovered. The color rose to her cheek at the idea of thus involuntarily playing the part of eaves-dropper; but what else could she do?

"Sit down, Lewis," cried Mr. Arundel, drawing forward an easy chair; "make yourself at home. Your cigar isn't out, I hope?"

"No, it's all right," said the strange voice. "I say, old fellow, speaking of making one's self at home, it strikes me that you are practicing the thing yourself rather extensively here!"

Arundel laughed.

"I am at home," he said complacently. "Why, bless your heart alive, Lewis, the good people here think I'm the greatest man alive."

"They'll find their mistake after awhile,"

"Not until I've made a sure thing of it," answered Arundel.

"What do you mean?"

"I mean that I am going to marry the girl."

"What, the little heiress?" echoed the man whom Arundel had called Lewis.

"Well, yes, if you choose to call her so. No great heiress, after all; but I dare say I can find a use for her twenty-five thousand dollars. And, to crown all, she's desperately in love with me."

"The other laughed hoarsely—a sneering sound, which made the blood boil indignantly in Minnie Dartford's veins.

"You always did play the deuce among the girls," he said. "So she's in love with you, eh?"

"Yes. It's quite amusing to watch the progress of her infatuation," answered Arundel. "I haven't proposed yet, simply because I don't want to precipitate the moment. Bless you, she'd jump into my arms to-morrow if I were to pop the question!"

"She'd jump out again quick enough, if she knew you half as well as I do!" jeered the other.

"But she don't, you see!" said Arundel. "'Where ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be wise'—you know the old saying. And the best of it is that I have somehow contrived to cut out another lover, who has been hanging around her ever since she was a child in bib-aprons—a man whom any girl ought to be proud to attract—Clarence Lee!"

"She's a fool!" was the muttered comment.

"Granted," said Arundel lightly; "but then you and I know that all women are fools."

"Not always, Mr. Arundel," answered a calm, quiet voice, and Minnie Dartford stood before him, her white dress shimmering like the robes of a phantom, in the semi-darkness, "for at least the lesson of their folly may teach them to be wiser in time."

"Miss Dartford!" echoed Herbert Arundel, dropping his cigar as he started, aghast, to his feet, while his companion looked on as if he would very much like to disappear through the cracks in the floor.

"I have unwillingly been compelled to listen to your edifying conversation of the last few minutes," Minnie went relentlessly on, "and you yourself can easily imagine how completely I have been enlightened thereby. I suppose I ought to be angry with you; but I can only be thankful for the fate which has been averted from me. Good evening, Mr. Arundel, and good-bye."

And, with a low inclination of her head, Miss Dartford passed from the room, and Herbert Arundel never saw her more.

He left town the self-same evening, carrying with him the interesting consciousness that he had overplayed his part and thwarted his own plans.

And Clarence never knew what had opened the eyes of his capricious little charmer. He only rejoiced that she had once more taken him into favor.

"Well," said Aunt Sylvia, on the morning of the day on which Minnie Dartford became Mrs. Clarence Lee, "I do believe I'm the happiest old woman alive."

"And I am the happiest young one, Aunt Sylvia," laughed Minnie. "So there is a pair of us!"

Worth and the Women.

From a Paris Letter.

My first visit in Paris is always to Worth, not only because he is a great artist, but because he is an entertaining man. He has a large establishment in the Rue de la Paix, where 400 young women stitch, stitch, stitch, not at all in poverty hunger and rags. His employes number 1,200 in all, and during the Cummune, when nobody ordered dresses or anything else, Worth provided for 70 of his workwomen, though he, too, suffered for want of decent food. That the man was a genius in his profession is as evident as the multiplication table. He inherited his ability from his mother, who possessed exquisite taste. You must not judge Worth by all the dresses made by him, as I used to do. If a woman insists upon having a fussy, furbelowed costume Worth is obliged to make it, however disgusted he may be.

"My life is anything but a bed of roses," he said one day. "What I have to endure from some women is simply incredible, when it is remembered they call themselves 'ladies.' A person sailed in one day and gave an order, saying: 'I don't like your taste, Mr. Worth; I want so and so.' 'Madame,' I replied, 'you can have what you want, but I am quite sure if I had your taste I shouldn't have any customers.' She didn't mind that sarcasm; she didn't understand it. What do women come to me for if they don't like my style? That's what they pay for. Why don't they make their own dresses if they know so much about it? Another lady said: 'You make my cousin's dresses and I don't approve of them. Mr. Worth.' 'Neither do I, Madame,' I answered. 'If you have a more cultivated eye than your cousin, I congratulate you."

That's the way Worth talks to people. It doesn't make the least difference who they are. He says exactly what he thinks. A grand dame once went up to Worth to show him a costume she wore for the first time. Glancing at her, Worth exclaimed: "Your dress is spoiled by your gloves. Take them off." And off they came.

Worth is a tallish man, with a big head and a very prominent forehead. His brown eyes are singularly shrewd in expressing, and their seizure of detail is surprising, that is, for a man. As a rule, men have no more eye for detail than owls have for the sun.

Better spend your money for a suit of clothes than a lawsuit.

A Lot of Hot Shot.

Delivered at the Iowa Republican State Convention.

It builds up a man's political constitution to take a front view of the fighting strength of the Republican party of Iowa. A Democrat has not been seen on the streets of an Iowa city after 9 o'clock on election night for a quarter of a century. The music of the telegraph office has been their annual elegy of grief. They look upon a bulletin board as an enemy of free government, and accept the first half of Franklin's maxim, "early to bed" when the returns are coming in.

The first act of the Democratic party is to file a schedule in bankruptcy. Already their property is out of their own name. Their national standard is in the hands of a man whose name is not disclosed by the Democratic national record. Four years ago his name could have prudently been used as an alias under which to travel incognito all over the known world outside of Buffalo. To elect him President would be like lending money to a stranger on the train. Modern Democrats of the practical school have no creed except the oath of office. All the important Democratic principles are unfit for use. They have been left out in the field just where they were used last, with not even a bunch of swamp grass thrown over them—in sun and rain, until rot and rust have done their fatal work.

It is true they talk piously of the need of reform, and, with an inexcusable libel, accuse the integrity of the Republican civil service. They work their favorite, classical allusion to the Augean stables for all there is in it. These, they assert, must be cleaned out. Yet from the general appearance of the crowd that is on hand to do the business, the average citizen is likely to conclude that their intention is to steal the fork rather than clean out the barn. It is true they preempt all sides of the tariff question. They profess to settle that issue by a jargon of words without precedent in the annals of nonsense and confusion. You might as well try to fit the hundred-headed dog of the ancient fable with a straw hat as to place a candid and intelligible tariff platform under the feet of the Democratic party. They approach that question and nearly every other like a man emptying bard coal ashes in a high wind, with their eyes shut and their backs to the subject.

Now and then you find a Republican who enjoys the momentary importance that belongs to the kicker and scratcher. The shortest road to celebrity nowadays is to advertise your conscience in the newspapers. There are Republicans who treat their conscience as if it were the stock in trade of a baking powder factory. They solemnly protest that everybody's conscience has alum in it except theirs. They adopt the doctrine of Matthew Arnold and insist that, in order to be safe, the nation must furnish the remnant with complimentary tickets and a front seat. They would have the country govern itself by the advice of persons whose names, if I may borrow a phrase from your good friend, Governor Carpenter, were written in the head book of high political grades. This campaign will last long enough to show to every sensible man's eye that no possible combination of tight trousers and hay fever can defeat the anxious will of the real conscience of this country—the Republican millions of America.

The people of this country like brains—nervous matter under the roots of the hair. In James G. Blaine they find a man the scope of whose faculties is a perfect horizon—a man who knows the size of this nation—a man who knows the history of this nation—a man who knows the strength of this nation—a man who knows the rights of this nation—a man who comprehends with a serene faith the mission of the Republic and its sublime destiny in the midst of the nations and the ages.

An Obtuse Youth.

It was a cool night in early September—one of those nights when the dews of heaven kiss the end of a girl's nose and make it as chilly as a loaded ice cream freezer. Such a night as holds a girl's hands in its own until it gets so cold that the frost bites her finger nails. For an hour Celeste had sat on the front steps with Algernon and listened to him talk politics and philosophy. Finally she remarked:

"It is getting too cold here; I must have something around me."

"Certainly," he said jumping up, "I forgot that. Permit me to bring you a shawl," and he came back with a light wrap. "How is that?" he asked, putting it about her shoulders.

"I don't think it is enough," she answered shivering.

"Let me get another," and he brought a heavier one.

"I'm afraid I shall have a chill," she said.

"Is that any better?" he asked, bringing out a still heavier wrap.

"No, no. You don't seem to be able to get enough around me," and she shivered over closer to him.

"There's nothing else here," he groaned, "and I think I had better call your mother."

She was as well as ever the next morning when he saw her, and now he wonders why the girl told a friend of his some men couldn't see through a mill stone when there was a hole in it she could put the entire mill in.

"At the party last night I noticed you were a little too much like the toasts." "Why, how were the toasts?" "They were drunk."

One Kind of Crank.

A young gentleman, son of one of the most notable families in the country, whose great-grandfather started with a peddler's pack upon his back, leaving millions to his children, has two fancies. One is cats of the Maltese breed, the other is trousers. Being a gentleman he wears trousers; if he was a "gent" he would wear "pants;" youthful readers will please observe the distinction. It chanced that I ran across this young man in Newport not many years ago, and on our way home in the Fall River boat, while sitting in Captain Simmons' office, he showed me a Maltese kitten with the most extraordinary tail I ever saw on a cat of any sort or age. On the back of each ear was a polka dot. During a somewhat discursive talk he informed me that he had eighty three cats of the Maltese variety the oldest of which was 12 years of age, and had been in his possession five years. He has at home a room devoted to cats with an attendant whose sole duty is to feed, watch and protect them. In the center is an iron gate, swinging on hinges, so as to rest level with the wall when not thrown directly across the apartment. If for any reason he desires to separate the sexes, this gate is used, or if any of the cats develop a peculiarly pugnacious disposition he can by means of the gate corral them, separating them from the others. In one corner of the room is an iron cage, in which he keeps any of the cats which may be ill, for any reason. Well, he told me all about this on the boat, and subsequently showed it to me. I looked at him with perfect amazement. He talks sensibly on other matters, and in spite of his exclusive admiration of his family and its wealth, is a reasonable good fellow.

While we were in Newport I saw him on several occasions, and couldn't fail to notice that on each successive appearance he disclosed an entirely distinct suit of clothes. After I became well enough acquainted with him to refer to what struck me as a feminine idiocy, he explained that he had over 100 different suits, embracing coat, waistcoat and trousers, and that in addition he owned twenty-five or thirty pairs of trousers, which could be worn with any of his coats. Now, there is a man 28 years old with a present income of $25,000 and the certainty of a fortune somewhere in the millions within the ensuing fifteen years at the furthest, whose great ambitions in life are to own the finest procurable specimens of Maltese cats and kittens, and to be considered in his set the best dressed and most elaborate man in town.

Knew the Lady.

"I wonder if that pretty girl over there is not a flirt," said one drummer to another on an incoming Illinois Central train the other day.

"She looks like it," said his companion, "and what is more, she and I have passed a good many happy hours together. I've staid many nights at her father's house, but I don't do that any more, if you can make a mash on her, go ahead."

The other drummer went over to where she sat and said:

"Permit me, madam."

"Certainly," she replied.

"My friend over there says he has known you for some time," he continued as he sat down. She blushed and smiled sweetly as she acknowledged the old acquaintance.

"Very nice fellow," said the drummer.

"Do you think so?" said the woman modestly.

"Bully fellow, but he ain't very popular with the girls. Don't seem to care much about 'em."

"Don't he?" she archly inquired.

"Not very much."

"But it's different with me; I like him ever so much."

"Happy old boy! Say, you couldn't love me a little as his proxy could you?"

"Goodness, no!"

"Well, that's pretty tough on me, but if you think so much of him, I'll get up and let him come over and sit by you."

"Oh! I wish you would." The masher looked red and blue by turns, and got up and went over and told his companion what she had said, and added:

"Say, old fellow, you've got her dead. She's mashed on you the worst way and wants you to come over and sit by her."

"Is that so?" queried the other with a satisfied smile, arising and bowing to the lady, who beckoned him over to the seat with her. And then he went over and put his arm around her, and when the conductor came along, he pointed them out to him and began to tell him what a mash the other fellow had made, when the conductor smiled blandly, and told him to go and soak his head, that was the drummer's wife and he had known her ever since she was a baby. The masher got off the first time they came up with a freight train and went the balance of the way as live beef.

Senator Bayard will begin the Democratic campaign in Delaware on the 18th of this month. He will do it with a can opener, a good collection of peach brandy, and a few choice allusions to the practical virtues of Thomas Jefferson, in their bearing on a campaign engineered by William H. Barnum.

The City of the Sun.

Cairo Letter in Omaha Herald.

But speaking of the claims set up in the way of Spiritual significance for places in this vicinity, there is one place, at least, the pretentions of which are duly authenticated. I refer to Heliopolis, the "City of the Sun," the ruins of which adjoin the present village of Matarigen, about five miles distant from Cairo. This famous place is identified as the On of the Bible, where Joseph took the daughter of the priest Potifera to wife. The sight of the once important city is appropriately marked by the oldest obelisk that has yet been discovered, with the exception of a small one in the Necropolis of Memphis. The companion to this existing obelisk (for obelisks are always erected in pairs) passed away over 1,200 years ago. The two were erected 4,000 or 5,000 years ago. The remaining one is a shaft 66 feet high, of red granite, covered with hieroglypics. The metal on the pyramidium at the top has passed away, and the successive inundations of the Nile have piled a good many feet of mud about the monument.

At Heliopolis was also the finest Egyptian temple, with one exception, in the Old Testament days: a temple dedicated to the sun and employing a staff of priests, menials, custodians and attaches which is said to have numbered no less than 12,913. The Pharaohs were especially proud of their title as "Lords of Helipolis.

Nearer the modern village are the tree and well of the Virgin. The Virgin's tree is a decayed sycamore, planted in 1672, allegedly upon the site of a previous tree, in the hollow trunk of which Mary had concealed herself and Divine Child. Not satisfied with well enough, the people in the vicinity spoil the whole tradition by also avering that a spider spun his web across the opening so as to effectually screen the fugitive. I did not learn whether the spider and his web are still preserved here or not. The present tree was presented to the Empress Eugenie by the Khedive at the inauguration of the Suez canal.

It is also stated on pretty good authority that the balsam shrub, the balm of which the Queen of Sheba presented to King Solomon, once throve in the vicinity of Heliopolis. The plant has long since ceased to grow hereabouts. Cleopatra attempted to introduce it, without success.

Expressiveness of the Japanese.

[Lincoln News.]

The Japanese language has no equivalent for our word hell, but it has the word jigoku. Jigoku consists of "(1) eight immense hot hells ranging one beneath the other in tiers. Each of these hells, has sixteen additional hells outside its gates, like so many ante-chambers, so that there 136 hot hells (2) There are eight large cold hells, and (3) there are the same number of hells of utter darkness." This is valuable information. Jigoku is just the world we have been looking for to give a concise idea of the situation when we arrive at the theatre and find we have left our ticket at home.

"Don't forget to remind me," said a Mt. Auburn lady, who has the pottery craze, to her domestic, "to have these jugs fired the first thing in the morning." "All right mum," responded Bridget. Next morning when the lady rose Bridget greeted her with a broad smile. "I fired them jugs, mum, when I got up, and the payces are hauled to the dump by now." It appears that she had misunderstood her mistress and had thrown the precious clay into the alley.

A SERENADE.

She leans far out upon the window sill,
And bathes her fair brow in the cool night air.
The moon lit street below her feet is still,
Or echoes only to the passers rare.

Far out she leans her rounded arms gleam white,
Her dainty rose-hued lips breathe odorous sighs,
And in her deep melting eyes the light
Of an utterable yearning lies.

White robed she is, this sentry of the night,
Fair as the vision of a young man's dream—
At length her eyes with hope fulfilled grow bright—
"He comes," she murmers, "and he's got the cream."

ADVICE TO KISSERS.

Some fellows think that all the bliss
Is taken by one little kiss,
And never stop to linger, when
They might as well have nine or ten.

Now take advice, all you young men,
When'er you get the chance again,
Just take as many as you can,
Then she will think you are a man.

And if she is not satisfied,
Just draw her closer to your side;
Kiss her till you raise a blister,
Then go and try it on her sister.

Governor Curtin's Candidacy.

The following special dispatch to the Harrisburg Patriot will be interesting to our friends in this Congressional district who are concerned in the congressional nomination:

DUBOIS, Pa., Sept. 10.—At a meeting of the Miners' and Laborers' Amalgamated Association of the Fourth District to-day, ex Governor Curtin was unanimously endorsed for re-election to congress, regardless of party, by the laborers and miners of this district.

We are also informed that a committee of seven was appointed by the same Association to wait upon the congressional conferees of both the Republican and Democratic parties to urge the nomination of ex-Gov. Curtin. The Labor Association includes the counties of Clearfield, Elk, Clarion, McKean, Jefferson and Centre. This is certainly a strong endorsement.

Senator Anthony's Will.

PROVIDENCE, Sept. 8.—The will of Senator Anthony was filed to-day. The legacies are about $200,000. The bulk of his fortune goes to his sister and relatives. The public bequests are $25,000, which were given to his niece, Mrs. Sarah Brayton, daughter of James G. Anthony, for life and after death to Brown University and the Rhode Island Hospital. Mrs. Brayton having died since the writing of the will, the legacy becomes immediate. A bequest of $30,000 in trust for Miss E. D. Potter during her life is given to the city of Providence for a fountain after her death. The sum of $3,000 is given to Brown University, the income to be used in prizes for excellence in scholarship, $3,000 to the Institute of Coventry and $500 to the Anthony Institute for the purchase of books. His collection of American poetry, from the library of the late C. Fiske Harris, is given to Brown University and his very complete collection of Congressional Records and public documents to the Public Library of Providence.

His faithful servants and employes receive legacies, as do also some personal friends. The executors, named in the will, which was executed November 24, 1882, are George W. Danielson, Henry W. Gardner and William A. Hoppin, of whom the two latter survive.

Cleveland's Friends Fail to Rally.

ELMIRA, N. Y., Sept. 9.—Despatches sent out from here saying there were 50,000 people in attendance at the State Fair Monday, the day Governor Cleveland was present, were gross exaggerations. The gate-keeper's tally showed less than 15,000 during the entire day, and many left before the Governor entered the grounds. At the political demonstration in the evening six reliable men made the number in the line 1654. The whole address of Cleveland occupied less than seven minutes in its delivery. There was nothing like an ovation at the fair grounds, the cheering being especially weak and undemonstrative. The speaking in the evening did not occupy more than six minutes and the whole demonstration fell far short of Democratic expectation. The men in line were drafted from eight counties in New York and Pennsylvania, a great effort having been made to get up an imposing show.

1,100 Cholera Victims in Naples.

NAPLES, Sept. 10.—It is officially announced that during the twenty-four hours ending last night there were 721 fresh cases of cholera in the city of Naples and 250 deaths. Since the beginning of the cholera outbreak in Naples there have been 1,100 interments in the cholera section of the cemetery.

NAPLES, Sept. 10.—The situation in this city is growing worse. In the last twenty-four hours ending at 9 o'clock this evening there have been 937 fresh cases of cholera and 365 deaths. All ministers there have earnestly urged King Humbert to leave the city, but the king refused their importunities. On Thursday the king will visit the populous quarters of the city.

The Rumored Fall of Khartoum.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—The Telegraph prints a private letter from Cairo which refers to an impression there that Khartoum has fallen and that the Gordon letters were spurious. It says that General Gordon ordered a sealed letter to be sent to Cairo, to be forwarded. Its arrival has not been acknowledged and it is supposed to have fallen into the hands of El Mahdi. General Lord Wolseley, commander of the British forces in Egypt, and Lord Northbrook, Special High Commissioner, arrived at Alexandria at noon to-day. The whole city turned out to see them land. They proceeded immediately to Cairo.

Oranges and Florida.

Better than Breezes and Blossoms—Under a New Flag.

Even the balmy air and orange blossoms of Florida fail to keep its inhabitants full of happiness and comfort. Art must help nature everywhere—in the tropics as well as among the the pines of the North. "And, chief among the blessings which are adapted to all zones," writes Dr. J. G. Wallace, of Fort Dade, Fla., "is PARKER'S TONIC. It seems to have the world for a field, and most of the current diseases yield to its action. I have used it in the case of a delicate and dyspeptic young lady with the most gratifying results. It seemed to accomplish with ease what the usual prescriptions and treatment for that miserable malady failed wholly to bring about. I am also glad to state that the Tonic has greatly relieved me personally of a troublesome atonic condition of the stomach of long standing. It is the ideal purifier and invigorant."

Messrs. HISCOX & Co. call especial attention to the fact that after April 16, 1883, the name and style of this preparation will hereafter be simply Parker's Tonic. The word "Ginger" is dropped, for the reason that unprincipled dealers are constantly deceiving their patrons by substituting inferior preparations under the name of Ginger; and as ginger is an unimportant flavoring ingredient in our Tonic, we are sure that our friends will agree with us as to the propriety of the change. There will be no change, however, in the preparation itself, and all bottles remaining in the hands of dealers wrapped under the name of "PARKER'S GINGER TONIC" contains the genuine medicine if the signature of HISCOX & Co. is at the bottom of outside wrapper. 16 35 4t

How Watch Cases are Made.

It is a fact not generally known that the James Boss' Gold Watch Cases really contain more pure gold than many "solid" gold cases. The demand for these watch cases has led to the manufacture of a very poor grade of solid gold watch cases—low in quality, and deficient in quantity. These cases are made from 4½ to 10 karats, and a 5 or 6 karat case is often sold for 12 or 14 karats. It is NOT economy to buy a watch case so poor in quality that it will soon lose its color, or one so soft that it will lose its shape and fail to shut tight, thus letting in dust and damaging the works, or one so thin that a slight blow will break the crystal, and perhaps the movement. It IS economy to buy a James Boss' Gold Watch Case, in which NONE of these things ever occur. This watch case is not an experiment—it has been made nearly thirty years.

HAZLETON, PA., Oct. 24, 1882.
I sold two James Boss' Gold Watch Cases thirty years ago, when they first came out, and they are in good condition yet. One of them is carried by a carpenter, Mr. L. W. Drake, of Hazleton, and only shows the wear in one or two places; the other by Mr. Bowman, of Cunningham, Pa.; and I can produce one or both of these cases at any time.

They are the most important secretory organs. Into and through the Kidneys flow the waste fluids of the body, containing poisonous matter taken out of the system. If the Kidneys do not act properly this matter is retained, the whole system becomes disordered and the following symptoms will follow: Headache, weakness, pain in the small of back and loins, flushes of heat, chills, with disordered stomach and bowels. You can thoroughly protect the Kidneys by BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS, and when any of these symptoms manifest themselves you can quickly rid yourself of them by this best of all medicines for the Kidneys. Brave King Humbert.

LONDON, September 13.—King Humbert's bravery has shamed the wealthy fugitives into returning to Naples, and by their exertions and example putting some heart into the poorer and more ignorant inhabitants. King Humbert has now repeatedly visited every slum in the city and in his passage to and fro he is always escorted by a crowd of poor and ragged wretches. Poor women, gaunt with famine, press forward with their emaciated babies and are happy if the King looks at or speaks a word to the children. Others seek to kiss the King's hands or some portions of his garments, and they are always unchecked by the monarch despite the horrified entreaties of his suite. Wherever the King presents himself the whole population turns out to do him honor. The King's example has stimulated the Neapolitan noblemen, who vie with each other in acts of practical charity. Marquis Campodesola has opened free food depots which are personally directed by various members of noble families. King Humbert has made a round of these depots, inspecting all the arrangements. The ladies are also as active and energetic in the work of relieving distress as their husbands and brothers. The Countess Sansevrino and many other ladies of the highest nobility are working like slaves in the ambulance service of the Red Cross Society, and in nursing the sick under the direction of the sanitary commission. It is estimated that 150,000 persons are destitute owing to the paralysis of business, and scenes of want and misery are witnessed on every hand. In the Mercator quarter the health authorities found thousands of poor wretches living in dark, damp and filthy cellars. Many of them were so reduced by want and sickness that they looked like spectres, but they still clung to their wretched tenements and it required force to remove them to clean and comfortable quarters.

An Eloping Couple Return.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—A dispatch received to-day at police headquarters from Captain Morgan, of the Yonkers police, states that Victoria Morosini, who eloped with Ernest J. Schelling, her father's coachman, voluntarily returned to the parental mansion at Yonkers with her husband this morning. The return was the result of negotiations that have been pending for two days between the runaway couple and Mr. Morosini. Mr. and Mrs. Schelling, who have been stopping in Troy since the elopement, took a carriage at Seaton and drove to the Morosini mansion. Mrs. Schelling entered the house alone, her husband remaining outside a block away. The young woman remained indoors for about an hour. What occurred inside is not certainly known, but it is believed that the grief stricken parents besought their daughter to renounce her husband and come back to their care. The father, however, absolutely refused to recognize Schelling as his daughter's husband. The daughter refused to give up her husband and left the house to rejoin Schelling. The newly married couple then proceeded to a hotel on Riverside avenue where they passed the night. Mrs. Morosini's condition was reported as being extremely critical in the evening, and her being able to live through the night was doubtful.

Europe's Wheat Crop.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—The agent of the Agricultural Department in Washington telegraphs to-day that the European wheat crop though above an average in product, will be less than the aggregate of 1882, and that Europe will need to be supplied with 180,000,000 bushels of wheat.

The Wisconsin Tornado.

CLEAR LAKE, Wis., Sept. 11.—The names of the three persons who were killed by the tornado here yesterday were Mrs. P. Burdeck, wife of the Postmaster: William Cavanagh, bookkeeper for A. A. Ingalls, and A. H. Saunders, a clerk in Ingalls's store. Walter Lewis, a clerk in Briggs's store, was seriously injured, and it is thought he will die. Some of the principal losses are: John E. Glover, sawmill, machinery, and lumber, $100,000; A. A. Ingalls, general store, $10,000, Smith & Lewis, store, $4,000. The total loss in Clear Lake and vicinity will reach at least $250,000.

Bill Nye, of Laramie Boomerang notoriety, was driving with his brother about three miles east of Clear Lake when the tornado struck them. He was lifted clear out of the wagon by the wind and dashed to the side of the road. His right leg was broken in two places below the knee. His brother was only slightly injured, and walked back to Clear Lake and procured help, but it was six hours before the injured man could be brought to town, owing to the road being blocked with fallen trees.

About forty buildings were wrecked in Clear Lake, including the Methodist, Congregational, and Lutheran churches. Humboldt & Co.'s saw mill, three miles east of here, was destroyed, causing a loss of $10.000.

Royalty at a Ball.

WARSAW, Sept. 10.—The ball last night in honor of the Royal party was a grand affair. As many as seven hundred persons were invited The Czar and Czarina and the Grand Dukes arrived at the ball amid salutes and fireworks and walked through the hall, bowing to the right and the left. The Czar conversed at considerable length with the Polish nobles who were present. The Czarina opened the ball with General Gourko and afterwards the Polish and Russian ladies were presented to her Majesty. The supper table was decorated with eight thousand roses. The city was more brilliantly illuminated than at any time before. The bridge over the Vistula was festooned with lights and the river was crowded with boats brilliant with lights of many colors. The palace was one blaze of light. The evening passed away without the least disorder.

The Consuls General of Great Britain, France, Germany and Austria have invited the Czar to a banquet.

The Czar and Czarina to-day inspected several hospitals and schools. Their Majesties laid the foundation stone this afternoon of a new wing of the Red Cross Hospital. This evening the Czar and party proceeded to Wilna, where they will attend the military manœuvres.

Lightning in Massachusetts.

MALDEN, Mass., Sept. 12.—One the heaviest thunder storms for years, with very strong wind, struck this place yesterday forenoon. A large number of shade tree around private residences were blown down and a large number of fruit trees were destroyed. The wind blew down one of the large 50 foot gates at the railroad crossing and broke a number of panes of glass throughout the town. Lightning struck the house of William Hargraves, in Edgeworth, passing to the kitchen, prostrating several ladies in the adjoining houses, but not seriously injuring them. At Melrose the lightning struck a house called the Mountain house, tearing off the chimney and part of the roof. At Stoneham the lightning was very sharp and struck in several places, although no great damage was done. At Walnut Hill the lightning struck a barn containing a horse, killing him and setting the barn on fire, totally destroying it, and causing a loss of $1,500. At Reading the house of Mrs, Spinney, on Arlington street, and that of L. Turner, of Salem street, were struck by lightning and slightly damaged.

Malady of Actor John McCullough.

CONEY ISLAND, Sept. 11.—Last evening a strange man was discovered attempting to walk the trestle-work of the Marine railway from Manhattan to Brighton Beach. An officer put him on board a train, when the man was recognized as John McCullough, the tragedian. A watch was kept on him, as it was feared he would attempt suicide. After the train started McCullough tried to jump off, but was prevented. Upon their arrival at Brighton Beach he complained of his head and the fearful heat of the past few days. It was evident that the eminent actor was suffering terribly, and a close watch was kept over him until he reached friends in New York, who had been notified of his condition. It seems that McCullough fancies he is followed by men who want to kill him, and he keeps dodging imaginary foes constantly.

Heavy Failure in New York.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Henry S. Burger, Richard W. Huribut and Cyrus A. Healy, surviving partners of the firm of Burger, Huribut & Livingston, sugar refiners, No. 91 Walnut street, to-day filed an assignment, giving the following preferences: Geo. Delano & Co., $5,000; J. M. Edwards & Co., $10,000; P. E. Nettleton, $10,000; J. Monroe Taylor, $15,000; F. S. Burger's estate, $5,000; Seely Bros., $10,000; Daniel Trowbridge, $19,000; National bank, Waterville, $75,000; S. Kiddy Mumford & Co., for any sum they may be compelled to pay as endorsers on the notes of the assignors, aggregating $30,000; Barkley Thompson & Co., on notes given for benefit of assigners, $19,500. Other preferences, for smaller amounts, aggregate $28,000. The cause of the assignment of the firm is said to be depression in trade. No estimate of the assets and liabilities is yet given.

Fatal Quarrel about a Girl.

CHATHAM, Va., Sept. 11.—A big Baptist revival has been going on every night this week at Whitmell. Miss Earle Aften, a country damsel in the vicinity, has been one of the most popular belles and it was a subject of comment that she had more attention than any other girl in the place. It seems that she inadvertently made an engagement for last night with two young men, Jackson Davis and John R. Dixon. Both were on hand at the appointed hour last evening, ready to escort her to church. She was in a dilemma as to how to act, as each of the suitors insisted that he had a right to the engagement. She finally selected Dixon, as he convinced her that he had been put to greater inconvenience to keep the engagement.

Davis retired in bad humor and it was noticed that he remained by himself during the whole evening and that he seemed to be watching the couple. After Dixon had taken his charge home he was met on the road by Davis. The two men at once began quarreling over the engagement and finally proceeded to settle their difference by a resort to deadly weapons. In the encounter Dixon got the better of his opponent and sent his dirk into his stomach. Davis is dying. The murderer escaped.

An Aeronaut's Narrow Escape.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 12.—Henry Warner made a balloon ascension from a point near Prospect Park, Niagara Falls, about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and had a rather serious time of it. The balloon did not rise very high, but sailed away a couple of miles and then suddenly descended into the Niagara river. Warner threw out every bit of ballast that he had, and even took off his shoes and threw them out, but the balloon still descended, and he finally abandoned it and made a bold push to swim ashore. The current was too swift for him, however, and he must have gone over the falls had not a couple of fishermen near by rescued him. The balloon, relieved of its load, rose in the air and sailed away.

Flight of Philadelphia Bankers.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 12—Renewed interest in the recent failure of the Ladner Brothers was excited here yesterday when it became known that they had fled from the city. Ever since the collapse they have been searching for bail, but with only partial success. The creditors have been pushing their charges earnestly, and additional allegations of fraud were made recently. Last night their arrest was ordered, but they could not be found and this morning officers notified the magistrate that they had fled.

Both of the Ladner Bros., the suspended bankers, were arrested this morning—Louis J. at Hoboken and William at Atlantic City.

Curious Explosion of Glycerine.

BRADFORD, Pa., Sept. 11.—A most singular occurrence is reported by one of the torpedo company's shooters He was engaged in shooting one of the McCalmont Company's wells at Coleville yesterday afternoon, and had left in his wagon four quarts of glycerine in excess of what he wanted to use. While he was working at the well a violent rain and wind storm passed over the valley, during which a tree blew over the wagon causing an explosion of the four quarts of glycerine. The wagon was demolished and one of the horses killed.

The Philadelphia North American.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 12.—The proprietors of the North American authorize the statement that that paper will on Saturday, September 20, and daily thereafter, be published as a one-cent morning paper, earnestly republican in politics, espousing and advocating protection to American labor and American industry. The first number at the reduced price will be a centennial issue, the paper on that day, September 20, completing one hundred years of publication as a daily newspaper.

The Pope and His Rights.

ROME, Sept. 10.—The clerical papers publish a letter from the Pope to the Archbishop of Florence, in which he animadverts against the doctrines preached by Father Curci, advocating the reconciliation of the Italian Government with the Vatican. The Pope maintains that the only basis of reconciliation with the King of Italy will be the recognition of the rights of the Church.

Curtin for Congress.

CLEARFIELD, Pa., Sept. 14.—The result of the Democratic primaries yesterday was the unanimous nomination of Curtin for Congress, Potter having declined to run. The returns thus far indicate the nomination of Norris for Assembly, Troxell, for Treasurer and Savage and Brown for Commissioners.

Opening of Princeton College.

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 10.—The College of New Jersey reopened today with the regular exercises. President McCosh and Dean Murray officiated. Nearly 150 new men have entered and the 138th college year starts off with about 550 students on the roll. The Theological Seminary opens next week, Thursday.

Maine's Total Vote.

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 11.—A special to the Press from Augusta says: "The total vote of the state will reach 142,410, and Robie's majority over Redman will be 20,615. This is the largest majority ever given a candidate for governor in this state even in a presidential year."

Fatal Railroad Collision.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 14.—A "wild cat" peach train on the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad collided with a coal train near White Haven this morning. Samuel Cole, of Mauch Chunk, the engineer of the peach train, was instantly killed, and Ruhf, fireman, was dangerously injured. Four coal cars were demolished and one engine was badly damaged.

A Letter from Comrade Rimer.

As will be remembered, Comrade G. W. Rimer, of Pennington Post, No. 283, G. A. R., met with a serious accident while attending the State encampment in this place. The following letter will inform his friends of his present condition. As it is all interesting, we publish it entire:

FAIRMOUNT SPRINGS, PA., Sept. 6, '84,
AUSTIN CURTIN, ESQ.,
S. V. C. Dept. of Pa., G. A. R.

Friend and Comrade:—I feel as though I must express to you my sincere thanks for the interest you manifest in my welfare. It is, dear comrade, a glorious feeling, though we are suffering affliction, to know that there is such an order as our glorious Grand Army of the Republic.

I have been a consistent worker in the order and since I have returned home am determined, if Providence spares me to get on my feet again, to work with renewed vigor and energy to bring so noble an order within the reach of every honorably discharged soldier and sailor in the land.

I arrived home in safety, but felt very tired and sore. I found my family improving, but now one of my children has been taken very sick with cholera infantum, and at this writing is not expected to live.

I am improving steadily, but am able to move only as I am helped in bed and fear it will be a long while before I can do much work.

My kind regards to all the boys—Commander Benner, J. I. Curtin, Amos Mullen and all other officers and comrades who so kindly aided me in so very, very many ways.

Trusting this may find you all in the enjoyment of good health, I remain in F., C. and L.,

G. W. RIMER,
Fairmount Springs,
Luzerne Co., Pa.

P. S.—Write me soon as time passes slowly with affliction and sickness on either side. G. W. R.

Resolutions Endorsing Curtin.

The following are the resolutions passed on Wednesday last by the Miners' and Laborers' Amalgamated Association in session at Dubois. It is appropriate to state that the Association is not a political organization, but is composed of members of all parties. For example, the committee is composed of three Republicans, three Democrats and one Greenbacker. We publish the resolutions below:

Resolved, That as both the Democratic and Republican parties claim to be true friends of labor, and ask our support on that ground, we are of the opinion that they can show their sincerity by such action in their respective organizations as will insure the unanimous re-election of ex-Governor Andrew G. Curtin to Congress from the Twentieth Congressional district of Pennsylvania. By so doing they can strengthen the power and influence in Congress which he will exert in favor of the laboring and producing classes of the State and Nation. And it is further

Resolved, That a committee of seven be appointed by the chair to present the foregoing preamble and resolutions to the respective Congressional conferences and conventions of above named parties and urge compliance therewith.

—The Pennsylvania railroad company has made a good move in sounding a note of warning to its employes, that they may be prepared for the cholera if it should be brought to this country. Orders have been issued requiring each superintendent to cause thorough inspection to be made on his division of all station buildings, shops and other structures and sewers and drains; to see that there is no stagnant water or filth of any kind on the company's grounds; to remove rank growing weeds from the vicinity of buildings, and to make every effort to secure the best sanitary conditions. Immediate steps must be taken to remedy any objectionable feature that may be discovered. When necessary a good disinfectant must be used wherever the same may be required, and especial attention must be given to all passenger, baggage and express cars, also cabooses, to see that they are clean and free from unpleasant odors; and thorough attention must be given to supplying good water to all cars. Every other railroad corporation should realize the importance of this action of the Pennsylvania company and should issue instructions of similar import.—Ex.

—Peaches sold at $1.50 per basket in this place on Thursday, but were disposed of still more rapidly Friday at $1.15. Very fine pears sold at $1.25 per basket.

Brevetics.

—The Loring Band will meet on Friday evening next at the residence of Mr. William Humes near Coleville.

—J. W. Jones & Co., of Philipsburg, have disposed of their undertaking business to Messrs. Alfred Slater and James Eskdale.

—An unusual number of suicides were reported in Friday's papers. Most of them were Democrats rendered melancholy by the news from Maine.

—Jack Frost visited this county on Sunday morning last and the traces of his unwelcome presence are perceptible on tomato vines and corn stalks.

—The Democratic headquarters is over the Watchman office and a somewhat peculiarly constructed banner has been placed in front to indicate that fact.

—Philpsburg now has what is conceded to be an excellent orchestra. Their first rehearsal took place on Monday evening, Sept. 8. David Atherton, John D. Douglass, Geo. Parker, Sam Peightal and John Mason are members.

—The names of several of the stations on the Huntingdon and Broad Top railroad have recently been changed. Coffee Run is changed to Entrikin; Rough and Ready to Beaver; and Pipers Run to Cyphers. Some years ago the name of Bloody Run was changed to Everett.

—A large saw mill located at Loch Lomond, Clearfield county, and operated by J. M. Holt & Co., of Philipsburg, together with an immense amount of lumber, was totally destroyed by fire on Wednesday night. The loss will exceed $60,000, which was fully insured in 37 separate companies.

—An old man confined in the Bellefonte jail died last Saturday and was taken to his home in Philipsburg Monday. His name is James Potter. He has acted very strangely of late, voluntarily throwing himself down the stairs, spilling scalding hot coffee over his person and exhibiting numerous other evidences of dementia.

—The B. C., C. and S. W. Railroad are shipping a fine quality of coal over their line and by way of the Reading railroad, into New York State. The coal is obtained from mines Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4, in the vicinity of Moshannon, which are now in operation, and many more mines will be worked when the railroad facilities to them are completed.

—The name of the recently organized skating club is the "Crescent" and not Cresson as we reported recently. The latter is the name of a famous mountain resort while the former is the religious insignia of the Mohammedan faith. "By this sign I conquer," exclaims the roller skater, and immediately assumes the shape of a half-moon as he speeds away on skates.

—Considering the prevalence of heat, the Cresson Skating Club have concluded not to have a grand ball yet. They have selected their uniforms which will consist of a blue cap, white shirt, blue necktie, blue Knickerbockers and blue stockings. They expect to visit the roller rink in a body about 9 o'clock next Tuesday evening. The band will be present and quite a large number of ladies and gentlemen as spectators.

—The Watchman is authority for the statement that "the Democratic National Committee have ordered sixty thousand copies of ex-Governor Curtin's great speech against monopoly and in defence of labor for circulation throughout the county." This will give each individual in the county about six copies. It is good news that the National Committee is aiding the Governor in his contest with rival candidates for the nomination.

A GOOD INVESTMENT.—One of our prominent business men said to us the other day: "In the spring my wife got all run down and could not eat anything; passing your store I saw a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla in the window, and I got a bottle. After she had taken it a week she had a rousing appetite, and it did her everything. She took three bottles, and it was the best three dollars I ever invested." C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

—A valuable horse owned by Mr. Wm. Everhardt, of near Boalsburg, died quite suddenly on Monday, the 8th inst., from the effect of the intense heat. Care should be exerted in exercising horses during such oppressive weather.

—There has been so little thunder and lightning this summer as to occasion comment. Wonder if all the superfluous natural electricity is utilized in the electric lights, telephone, telegraph, etc? If so, they are useful in a way not heretofore thought of. We don't expect an immediate answer to this scientific question, but will refer it to the gentlemen who are now assembled in Philadelphia.

LOVEVILLE.

Many Interesting "Lines"—The Weather, Personals, A Wedding and a Political Demonstration.

LOVEVILLE, Sept. 13, 1884.

Dry and dusty.

A good rain would be greatly appreciated.

The political meetings have commenced to "boom her up."

The United Brethren held their last quarterly meeting in Half Moon on Saturday and Sunday last.

Last Sunday was the hottest day we ever experienced in Loveville, the mercury reaching 101 degrees above zero in the shade.

On the five days—5th to 9th, inclusive—the mercury registered 100½°, 99°, 101°, 98°, and 97°, respectively.

It is said that William S. Furst G. A. R. Post of Stormstown will hold a picnic at Marengo Station some time in the near future.

Mr. Whippo has just had erected a handsome new picket fence, fronting on Main street and Mill avenue. It beautifies his place.

Miss Mary E. Beck, of Centre Line, departed for Lebanon on the 3d inst., to visit relatives in the latter place. She will remain until October. We wish her a pleasant sojourn.

We were informed by Mr. W. W. Yeager that the farm generally known as the "Major Stevens farm" of Centre Line was sold by the trustees this week for $8,000. Mr. John P. Sebring, of Jersey Shore, was the purchaser.

Miss Edith E. Miller, one of Loveville's fairest young ladies, left this this place on Tuesday, the 9th inst., for Altoona, to visit her father. A pleasant trip, Miss Edith, and ere long may we again welcome you back to our village.

Squirrel time is here and

"The echo of the hunter's gun
Doth through the woods resound," as the sportsman seeks his game; but thus far we have not heard of many being killed.

Mr. Joseph C. Yeager, of Centre Line, and a Miss Whippo, of the Cross Roads, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony on the 3d inst. Now, friend Joe, we wish you that happiness that true love alone can bring. May you never see the dark and gloomy days of wedded life, but may the bright and cheerful days ever be yours.

The Republicans of this place are indebted to the following named patriotic ladies for the fashioning of their flag: Mrs. Whippo, Mrs. Cole, Mrs. Fink, Mrs. Rumbarger, Mrs. Gates, Miss Laura Cole and Miss Lizzie Ellenbarger. And now, ladies, we take off our hat and with due deference tender our sincere thanks and acknowledgement of the favor rendered. May we never live to dishonor or shame that beautiful ensign.

On Thursday evening, the 11th instant, there could be seen wending their way towards Loveville, people of all ages and sizes, without regard to sex, for the ladies were here in large numbers. From the appearance of things, we quickly concluded something of an unusual character was to take place. Yes, it was easy to see that a pole, and that a Blaine and Logan one, was about to be raised. After the crowd had assembled Mr. Wm. Cole, who was chief in command, called attention and gave orders, and every man was at his place. In a very short time the pole was elevated to a perpendicular, standing 80 feet above ground. To Mr. David Gates was accorded the honor of hoisting the flag, and at 7 o'clock the Stars and Stripes floated proudly to the breeze 60 feet above terra firma, while cheers loud and long rent the air for the successful accomplishment of the undertaking. Even the ladies clapped their hands, waved their handkerchiefs and said "Isn't that nice!" Just previous to the hoisting of the flag, John G. Love, Esq., of Bellefonte, arrived on the ground, and the applause having subsided the assemblage repaired to the store house, where a meeting was organized by calling Mr. Isaac Beck to the chair. Mr. Love was introduced and gave one of his always brilliant addresses. His speech was interesting and spicy and frequently called forth the applause of his listeners. As his talk was well seasoned with bright humor, containing numerous incidents that occasioned laughter, he held his auditors' closest attention during the entire address of about 45 minutes. At the close of his remarks he thanked the audience for their attention. After Mr. Love retired, Mr. Cole moved a vote of thanks to the speaker, which was heartily given. Cheers for Blaine and Logan were then called for and the audience responded with enthusiasm, after which the meeting adjourned.

Among the incidents of the occasion it is worthy of mention that Mr. John Cole performed the somewhat daring feet of climbing the pole to the height of 40 feet to loosen the ropes, and was rewarded with three rousing cheers.

Mr. Wm. H. Fink, while engaged in decorating the store front, misplaced a stool, and when he stepped on it everybody thought there was a heavy come down in politics. We saw his lips move, but fortunately didn't hear what he said.

The flag raised on Thursday evening is only the second flag ever raised in this place, the first being in 1860, to show our patriotism at the time of the opening of the war, and the one raised on Thursday is for a similar and equally important purpose.

We noticed that after the meeting was over, two candidates, namely, H. G. Elder and J. C. Henderson, put in appearance, but were too late to be conspicuous. You must hurry along faster, boys.

We almost forgot to mention that a large Blaine and Logan club was enrolled. It already numbers 40. What do you think of that for little Loveville? Compare the entire State in the same proportion, please, and note the result.

But 'tis time I write, WEB.

—Mr. George Jack, of Boalsburg, has made an important and advantageous change in the location of his store. He has moved it across the street into his own store room, which has been freshly painted and otherwise improved. He is now located very comfortably both in store and dwelling, but we are surprised to hear that he will dispose of his business if he can do so advantageously. The Western fever continues to rage in some localities and he is probably contracting it, and believes his only cure will be found on the western bank of the Mississippi.

—Mr. Chase, of the Steam Heating Company, is making such changes in the connection of the service pipes and street pipes as will permit him to make connections after the steam supply is in operation without requiring the steam to be turned off at all. He can not tell how soon he will begin supplying steam, but says it depends on the time cold weather begins. It may not be long before it will be necessary to supply heat to the public school house.

—Trousers, says an exchange, will be worn longer in October than in September—one day longer.

Medical, etc.

WHAT WILL convince you of the wonderful curative properties combined in HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA, if the remarkable cures that have been effected by its use fail to impress upon your mind this repeatedly proven fact? Thousands are using it, and all declare that it is a medicine possessing all and even more than we claim for it. My friend, if you are sick or in that condition that you cannot call yourself either sick or well, go and get a bottle of HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA, and realize yourself how this medicine hits the right spot, and puts all the machinery of your body into working order. WILL CONVINCE

From the Registrar of Deeds for Middlesex County, Northern District.

LOWELL, MASS.

MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO.: Gentlemen—It affords me much pleasure to recommend HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA. My health has been such that for some years past I have been obliged to take a tonic of some kind in the spring, and have never found anything that hit my wants as your Sarsaparilla. It tones up my system, purifies my blood, sharpens my appetite, and seems to make me over. Respectfully yours, J. P. THOMPSON.

One of our prominent business men said to us the other day: "In the spring my wife got all run down and could not eat anything; passing your store I saw a pile of HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA in the window, and I got a bottle. After she had been taking it a week she had a rousing appetite, and it did her everything. She took three bottles, and it was the best three dollars I ever invested."

SPICES.—The best cook in the land cannot cook successfully without pure, fresh spices. These we have in every variety. Well-seasoned food adds to long life and happiness.

SUGARS AND SYRUPS.—In Sugars and Syrups we have all the best brands in the market. Much of the sugar now sold is adulterated, and in an article of this kind there is great waste. We buy from reliable dealers, and handle only the genuine goods.

TEAS AND COFFEES.—No breakfast can be thoroughly enjoyed without a good cup of coffee or tea. A drink of this kind is stimulating and goes right to the spot. Our Coffees and Teas are fresh and strictly pure. The fragrant odor which escapes from the steaming pot as it comes in from the kitchen will convince you of this. We sell more coffee than any other two houses in the county. Why? Because we sell the best and the people know it.

NUTS, CONFECTIONERY, ETC.—In Nuts and Confectionery we have everything that is nice, and just what will please the young folks, and old folks as well. Our candies are all pure and wholesome; We do not handle the highly-colored, poisonous mixtures that ruin and decay the teeth. We have new Florida oranges (this fall's crop), fine Figs and Prunes, and a choice line of Canned Fruits and Preserves. Bear this in mind when preparing to Celebrate the merry holidays.

We make special mention of the above lines of goods because they are all leading articles at this season of the year. In other lines our stock is equally fresh and complete.

We buy the Best Goods and sell at the Lowest Figures.

Call in and inspect our No. 1 goods. Then you will know where to purchase when your cupboard needs replenishing.

LATEST TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

In the Pine Tree State.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 9, 8 a. m.—The Record, a Democratic paper, gives the republicans more than 15,000 majority and says they elect everything.

PORTLAND, Sept. 8.—The election passed off quietly. Augusta, Blaine's home, gives Robie, Republican, 1,275; Redman, Democrat, 624; scattering, 42. In 1880, Davis, Republican, 504; Plaisted, fusion, 899.

PORTLAND, Sept. 8.—Seventy-five towns in 1884 give Robie 26,216; Redman, 18,373; scattering, 1,302; Republican plurality, 7,841. The same towns in 1880 gave Davis 24,518; Plaisted, 22,013; scattering, 233. Republican plurality, 2,505. Republican gain, 5,336. Plurality elects in Maine.

Portland gives a plurality for Robie of 757, a gain over 1880 of 500. A full vote was cast. Reed is re-elected to congress by a fair majority. One hundred towns give, in 1884, Robie, Republican, 30,750; Redman, Democrat, 22,131; scattering, 2,540. Republican plurality, 8,411. Republican gain, 6,652.

Biddeford gives a Democratic majority of 410. In 1880 Biddeford gave 67 Republican majority. Lewistown gives a Democratic majority of 67. In 1880 Lewistown gave 125 Republican majority. Congressman Dingley in his own city, Lewistown, gets the same vote as for governor. The Democrats are jubilant over both these towns. Both are factory cities.

Over one hundred and twenty-five towns give Robie 34,448; Redman, 24,113; scattering, 1,600. Republican plurality, 9,765. In the same towns in 1880 the Republican plurality was 2,454. Reports from the Aroostook county committee give that county to the Republicans by an increased majority. The Lewistown Journal (Republican) gives Robie 11,000. It claims all the Congressmen elected.

Returns from all sections of the state show slight republican gains over 1880. The congressional vote is coming in slowly, but at 1 o'clock the indications are that all four of the present congressmen are reelected. The constitutional amendment was carried by a good majority.

One hundred and seventy-five towns give Robie 42,171; Redman 30,592; scattering 1,867. Republican plurality 11,579. The same towns in 1880 gave Davis 39,161; Plaisted 37,289; scattering 278. Republican plurality 1,872. Republican gain 9,707. Forty-nine towns in the first district give Reed a majority of 503 over Cleaves. The full vote will not vary much from this.

Sixteen towns in the First district show gains for Reed of 234 over 1880. Biddeford is not included. A large loss is reported there. Reed's plurality in 1880 was 117.

BOSTON, Sept. 8.—The Journal's Maine specials indicate all four republican congressmen elected; that no democratic state senators have been chosen, and that the house is overwhelmingly republican.

PORTLAND, Sept. 8.—Two hundred towns give Robie, republican, 52,072; Redman, democrat, 38,318; scattering, 2,212. Republican plurality, 13,753. Republican gain, 11,563.

MIDNIGHT.—Returns up to midnight indicate a republican plurality of over 13,000. Estimates based on the returns received give Reed a majority of 600 in the First district, with Dingley, Milliken and Boutelle re-elected in the Second, Third and Fourth districts, the latter by an increased majority. The republicans claim 16,000 plurality for Robie. The democrats concede 12,000. The state legislature is strongly republican.

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 9.—Later returns show the senate will stand 31 republicans and no democrats. The house, as far as heard from, will have 82 republicans and 21 democrats. Reed's plurality in this district with four towns to hear from, 736. The missing towns four years ago gave him 105 plurality.

BANGOR, Sept. 9.—Hannibal Hamlin declined to vote on the constitutional amendment, giving as his reason that he did not care to vote under inspection. The republicans elect their county ticket in this county, with possibly the exception of sheriff. The republican gains are mainly in the large towns.

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 9.—Full returns from the First congressional district give Reed 17,584, Cleaver 16,669, Reed's plurality 915.

AUGUSTA, Sept. 11.—The following dispatch was forwarded from here to-day:

John A. Logan, Chicago: Returns from remote sections of the state increase the majority beyond all expectations. In 358 towns the republican majority over Redman exceeds 18,000, and the prospect is that when the complete returns are received the majority may reach 19,000. It will possibly be the largest ever given in the history of the republican party in Maine, with two exceptions, at the close of the war. The latest returns show the republicans have carried every county in the state and have elected every member of the state senate. The magnitude of the republican vote is a surprise to both parties. It shows that a large number of democrats joined our ranks.

[Signed.] WALKER BLAINE.

ROCKLAND, Me., Sept. 11.—Full returns from Knox county give Robie 640 plurality. The republicans elect both senators, county attorney, treasurer, judge and probate register. In 1882 Knox county gave Plaisted 855 plurality, and elected the democratic county ticket by 900 plurality.

LEWISTON, Sept. 11.—The Journal publishes the returns of over two hundred towns on the prohibitory constitutional amendment, which gives 49,444 in favor and 19,166 against the amendment. The majority will be increased to over 40,000 by returns to come.

AUGUSTA, Me., Sept. 11.—Three hundred and fifty-eight towns give Robie 69,878 and Redman 51,217. These are not official figures. Complete official returns will not be in for several days.

LEWISTON, Me., Sept. 11.—Returns from 429 towns give Robie 17,263 majority. This will probably be increased slightly.

Sleeps only Four Hours.

ANSONIA, Conn., Sept. 7.—John Maher, of this place, is one of the most peculiar characters in Connecticut. He is better known here as John Who-Never-Sleeps. John is an Irishman, who is making for himself a little fortune at $1.50 per day by working thirteen hours in the factory. Thither he goes every day, rain or shine, and he is never ill. Of the remaining eleven hours he devotes seven to labor and four to sleep.

This perpetual living without sleep causes a great deal of annoyance to his neighbors and to everybody within a mile of him who wishes to sleep when he is at work. He now owns three double houses and two fine building lots. For years he has been clearing the lots of stone, working wholly by night. He has done his blasting with giant powder by torchlight, and at all hours except near midnight can be heard the sound of his hammer and drill. He does not put fire to his fuse before four o'clock a. m., when off go three or four tremendous blasts, the shock of which sends half the fathers and mothers of Ansonia out of bed upon the floor, like the recent slaughter of fish by the bursting of a torpedo at Beauford Point.

Mr. Maher is thin, nervous and as supple as a Rocky Mountain goat. He is only 40, but looks aged because of his devotion to money-getting. He has never made but one losing speculation. A few years ago he sank a well in the rear of one of his houses through seventeen feet of solid rock without help and carried the stone up on his back, most of the work being done with the aid of a lantern. A week after it had been finished it was hopelessly ruined, so that he had to fill it up. He had, with the aid of his wife, started a small grocery store. A barrel of kerosene oil, which was left outside and some yards distant from the well, leaked and its contents finally worked through the ledge into the water.

Huntingdon Democrats.

HUNTINGDON, Pa., Sept. 9.—The democratic county convention met in this city to-day, and completed the fusion ticket by nominating candidates for the offices left vacant by the handful of dissatisfied republicans yesterday. Much trouble was experienced by Mr. Speer in marshalling his men for fusion, which was distasteful to a large number of the delegates who left the convention in disgust, declaring they would not support the combination ticket. All the officers of the convention were Speer men, and Chairman Caldwell, whose credentials as a delegate were controlled, ruled the convention accordingly, no such high-handed and arbitrary ruling being ever before witnessed in a convention in this county. Several delegates from Carbon, Shirley, and other districts, were so thoroughly incensed over the proceedings that a general revolt was raised through their objections, in which the wildest confusion prevailed, culminating finally in a regular knock-down between the opposing factions. The affair threatened to end in a serious riot, but peace was with much difficulty restored. The remainder of the ticket nominated to-day is: For congress, David Caldwell, of Huntingdon; state senate, H. J. McAteer, of Alexandria; president judge, John M. Bailey, of Huntingdon; prothonotary, James Kelly, of Huntingdon; treasurer, Calvin Bell, of Petersburg; county commissioners, John H. Johnston, of West, and Jacob T. Hoover, of Penn; auditor, Harrison Speck, of Juniata; coroner, Samuel T. Clement, of Huntingdon. The leaders of the democracy in various sections of the county have openly renounced the fusion ticket, and declared in favor of the regular republican nominees.

A Set-Back to Butler.

BOSTON, Sept. 7.—George Gunton, the well-known labor advocate, will publish in the Fall River News to-morrow evening an open letter to General Butler, in which, after caustically reviewing General Butler's letter, he reaches this conclusion:

The political situation, therefore, so far as labor is concerned, remains wholly unchanged by your candidature, and the real issue of this campaign is still confined to the two great political parties, represented by Grover Cleveland and James G. Blaine. Between these two men the wage workers can have no difficulty in deciding. Cleveland is a Democrat of very ordinary capacity and entertains the most contracted and superficial views upon all great public questions, and, true to the traditions of the party he represents, he is an enemy to all labor legislation, which has been amply shown by his bitter hostility to labor measures. His vetoes, which were devoid alike of human sympathy and sound public policy, were a direct challenge to the very principle upon which all humane and true economic legislation is based.

Mr. Blaine is a Republican of remarkable ability and strength of character. While he has not made a special study of the labor question and makes no pretensions to being a labor representative, he has never been found opposing labor measures, and he is a pronounced friend of such legislation.

Funeral of Secretary Folger.

GENEVA, N. Y., Sept. 9.—The funeral of the late Secretary Folger took place this afternoon. At least 40,000 people thronged the streets. The body lay in a massive casket covered with plain black velvet, with silver mountings. It bore the following inscription:

CHARLES JAMES FOLGER.
Born April 16, 1818,
Died September 4, 1884.

The president, Secretaries Frelinghuysen, Teller and Chandler and Postmaster General Gresham were present. The services took place in the First Presbyterian church, the interior of which was heavily draped in black. The scripture lesson read by Rev. Mr. Moary was taken from the 15th chapter of First Corinthians. Rev. Dr. Upson, of Auburn, followed with a discourse delivered without a text.

Upon the conclusion of his remarks "Rock of Ages" was sung, and Rev. Dr. E. N. Potter gave the apostolic benediction, after which the procession formed and marched to the cemetery. The grave was enclosed by military and societies in the form of a hollow square. The services were conducted by Rev. Dr. Potter according to the ritual of the Episcopal church. Many of the multitude lingered in the grounds, but others from abroad quickly departed after bidding a last adieu to all that is mortal of the illustrious dead.

Damage by a Cyclone.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 10.—It is rumored here this morning that a cyclone wrecked thirteen houses between Stillwater and a small place called Marine Mills, a few miles north of that place. William Lyman's house was totally wrecked and the inmates seriously injured. A report comes from Stillwater just now that all the physicians of that place have been called away to the vicinity of Marine to attend the persons injured and it is feared the storm did more damage to life and property than first reported. It is difficult to get any direct information, as the place is not easily reached.

Fifteen or twenty houses were wrecked at Marine and a number of persons were injured. At Clayton one-half of the lighter structures of the building were destroyed. At Chippewa Falls the storm was the worst of the season. The river is sixteen feet above low water mark and it is feared the upper bridge over the dam will go. At Stillwater a number of tents at the fair grounds were blown into ribbons.

ST. PAUL, Minn., September 10.—Half of the town of Clear Lake, Wisconsin, was wrecked last night by the storm. Three persons were killed and many wounded.

Eloped with Her Father's Coachman.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—A dispatch received at police headquarters to-night announced that Victoria Morosini, the blonde-haired daughter of Chevalier G. P. Morosini, had run away with Ernest J. Shelling, her father's slender and handsome coachman. Mr. Morosini was formerly Jay Gould's private secretary and confidential man and is now a member of the Wall street firm of W. E. Conner & Co., of which Jay Gould is a special partner. He lives at Yonkers. Shelling, the coachman, was discharged about a week ago. He found some means, however, of communicating with Miss Morosini, and she left the house to meet him at 3 o'clock this afternoon. No trace of the runaways had been obtained at midnight.

The Hanlan-Beach Boat Race.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 8.—Particulars of the Hanlan-Beach race brought by the Australian steamer state that Hanlan took the lead after the first quarter, and when a mile and a half had been covered he was a length ahead. Beach then spurted and rowed right down on Hanlan. The latter allowed his boat to cross and a foul took place. Hanlan put up his hands and claimed foul, but Beach rowed on and came in five on six lengths ahead. The umpire disallowed the foul claimed by Hanlan. Subsequently Beach admitted that he was beaten, and was paralyzed by the proximity of a steamer to his boat.

Bank to Resume.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Sept. 10.—There is a hopeful feeling in this city to-day relative to bank affairs. Bank Examiner Shelly is still in charge and he and the board of directors have authorized the public statement to be made that the capital of the bank remains intact, and that there is no reason why the bank should not resume business as soon as necessary. The formalities in such cases have been complied with. Every creditor will be paid in full. The bank will probably resume business in the course of a week or ten days.

An Accident to Mr. Carnegie.

CRESSON SPRINGS, Sept. 7.—Andrew Carnegie, the rich iron master, was riding through East Park on Saturday evening, when his horse fell, throwing him violently to the ground. The horse, in attempting to get up, kicked Mr. Carnegie in the face, cutting a large gash. He was taken to his cottage, where his wounds were dressed. He may be able to be around in a few days.

St. John's Son a Republican.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—A son of Governor St. John, the prohibition candidate for the presidency, is a clerk in the land office here. He is not a prohibitionist, and will vote the regular republican ticket. He votes in Kansas.

A Sad State.

Merchant Traveler.

"I'm a pity," remarked the preacher, "that the world is so prone to be untruthful."

"Well, yes, rather," replied a layman.

"I have noticed for some time past, that the evil has been growing, and not only in great things but even about small things, lies will be told."

"True, very true," answered the layman sadly, "I was reading yesterday that 'heaven lies about us in our infancy.'"

Then the preacher put on his hat and went out to commune with the hitching post.

Skill vs. Ignorance.

As a perfect pharmaceutical preparation, we are told that Hood's Sarsaparilla surpasses any proprietary article upon the market. Even to our inexperienced eye we see positive indications of the truth of the foregoing. A glance at the article shows the scrupulous neatness and care with which the details of its manufacture and putting up must be conducted. These points are of importance in any business, but in the manipulations of remedies for the relief of human suffering they become of supreme importance, and only such medicines are worthy public confidence.

"Ah, Miss De Smyth, did you enjoy yourself in the mountains?" "Oh, yes, I had a most delightful time." "What have you done all the summer to amuse yourself?" "Well, I have been painting most of the time." "Yes, I can see that, but I mean what else?" And then somehow or other a polar wave seemed to strike both of them.

Itching Piles—Symptoms and Cure.

The symptoms are moisture, like perspiration, intense itching, increased by scratching; very distressing, particularly at night; seems as if pinworms were crawling in and about the rectum; the private parts are sometimes affected. If allowed to continue very serious results may follow. "SWAYNE'S OINTMENT" is a pleasant, sure cure. Also, for tetter, Itch, salt rheum, scald-head, erysipelas, barbers' itch, blotches, all scaly, crusty skin diseases. Box, by mail, 50 cts.; 3 for $1.25. Address, DR. SWAYNE & SON, Phila., Pa. Sold by druggists. may6 1y

"There was a divorce suit on trial in Austin, and it was in evidence that the husband had carried off most of the wife's jewelry. "Did he leave her any jewelry?" asked the lawyer. "Yes, I believe he left a gold watch." "What kind of a watch did he leave her?" "Well, I should call it a lever watch under the circumstances." "No levity in this watch case," said the judge, rapping on the desk.

Polishing the Wrong End.

Many men daily polish their boots who never give a thought to the condition of their hair, except to harrow it occasionally with a brush and comb, or submit it to the paralyzing attentions of the average barber. What happens? Why, this: From neglect, mental anxiety, or any of a score of causes, the hair turns prematurely gray and begins to fall out. Parker's Hair Balsam will at once stop the latter process and restore the original color. An elegant dressing, free from grease.

"DIAMOND" DUST.

News and Gossip Served in First-class Style by our Unionville Correspondent.

MR. EDITOR:—Many are complaining of the dullness of the campaign, but it is not visibly felt at this place, owing to the business "boom" which our village is having. The proprietors of the Unionville Flouring Mills, tiring of the natural process of motive power, have put in their building a new 35-horse power boiler, and a 30-horse power engine, by which they will hereafter run the machinery or any new attachments in the future—hence difference in power betwixt boiler and engine. So we expect to live, be happy and corpulent from the power of a few pounds of steam.

Our new depot is in the course of erection, and although the location does not suit the majority of the people, they acknowledge the want too keenly to murmur about the site. It is to be a substantial structure, 30 by 45 feet, and to be used as a freight and passenger house combined. Mr. A. J. St. Clair has excavation and stone work contract and Hoover, Hughes & Co. do the balance.

Our new shoemaker, Mr. J. H. Mattock, is doing a thriving business as well as his next door neighbor, Mr. Bohnam, the gunsmith, who is busy preparing the boys with shooters for the fall hunting. "Who has a good coon dog?" seem to be the words nightly used by the many frequenters of the stores.

O. G. Musser's new residence on High street is about completed and adds much to the appearance of the north end of town.

Ex-Commissioner Bing has also repainted his residence on the same street, making in all the handsomest row of residences of any village in the county.

The little unpleasantness created by the late Democratic primary has fully subsided, as all the parties have, as usual on such occasions, repented; but one more shamrock tied to the lion's tail would have caused the "third termers" to bolt and go for St. John.

Mr. John Constantine Rumbarger, the gentlemanly agent at this place, has about fully recovered from his late unpleasant connection with the special train which passed so rapidly on the 16th ult. John says it was lack of proper time to train for the occasion that accounts for his being knocked out on the first round. However, he is back at his former position—in a parlor up the pike.

Mr. G. W. Taylor arrived home from Dudley on Friday, September 5. He was engaged in the mercantile trade at that place for two years past. Will looks well and it seems that the breeze of the Broad Top latitude agrees with him. But, Willie, didn't you stay a day too long at the Baptist Association in Huntingdon on your way home? We think it in order that the young lady should insist in locating a residence—not for the present election, but many to come.

Dr. E. L. Miller, a graduate of the Baltimore School of Medicine, has located in our midst and bids fair to do his duty towards suffering humanity. The Doctor is formerly from Centre Hall and a student of Dr. W. A. Jacobs.

A large water melon was left at the door of A. J. & T. E. Griest's for a sign one day last week, when some boys concocted a plan to do away with such a temptation. So when the shades of night had fairly settled down on the melon they deliberately carried off their prize in triumph to a back alley and made a divvy. Jack offered a reward of $5 for the perpetrators of the deed. Fortunately for the boys, no ipecac, paregoric, castoria, etc., followed the feast; hence the detectives "got left."

Wm. P. Fisher, Jr., our expert bicyclist, is frequently seen rolling over our streets with the grace only known to a person who can stay on a horse of such narrow dimensions.

Many of our citizens were gathered in groups a few evenings since looking with some surprise at a spurious article which appeared in the late Watchman concerning the financial embarrassment of one of our most prominent citizens, caused by the failure of the B. and B. R. R. R., when really the would-be "penniless" never lost a cent, as he was in no wise connected with the road, but merely loaned a friend a trifling sum to pay some men for making ties. Otherwise, the gentleman is as solid financially as he ever was—second to none in the town. It was finally ascertained that that crank of cranks gained access to the office of the Watchman and as usual took advantage of the editor's busiest moments and inserted a batch of frivolous nonsense with no necessary truth whatever, which the better class of people always despise. This crank is so well known that it is useless to recognize any of his charitable slurs, as his reputation for truth being equal to his other qualities makes it all the more surprising that those who publish papers don't fire him out and prevent all future trouble. DIAMOND

The C. L. S. C.

This is again an appropriate time, we believe, for those who care to connect themselves with the Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Circle. There has been a small organization of this character in Bellefonte for years past, but there is no reason that a greater number should not take advantage of the courses of study it prescribes. It is intended for everybody who can spare even forty minutes a day to study which may be pursued at home.

There is also a circle in Lock Haven, and the Express of that city in speaking of it says:

More than sixty thousand names are enrolled in this so-called "People's University." Although not a university at all, it has put educational influence, atmosphere and ambition into the homes of the people, which will lead many thousands of youth to seek the education which colleges and universities supply.

It is an easy thing to join the C. L. S. C. No preliminary examination is required; indeed, no examination is required at any time. Members are expected to fill out certain simple memoranda year after year and forward them to the central office of the C. L. S. C., at Plainfield, N. J. But this is no task at all. A careful reading of the books is all that is necessary in order to graduate.

Persons may join the C. L. S. C. for one year. A full course requires four years, and even after graduation one may continue to read on and add seals for years to the diploma which he receives at the end of the first four years.

The course embraces simple, entertaining and instructive reading in ancient and modern history and literature, in physical, mental and moral science, and in all matters that pertain to a true life—physical, intellectual, industrial, domestic, social, political and religious. It is unsectarian and unsectional, promoting good fellowship and fraternity, inspiring help to the home, the church, and the State. All are alike welcome to its fellowship.

The "circle" in Bellefonte includes several of the lady teachers in the public schools, any one of whom will probably be able to furnish additional information.

Street Scenes.

The fence on the Allegheny street side of the public school grounds has been handsomely repainted.

The liveliest hive of industry in Bellefonte is at Maj. Wm. F. Reynolds' new residence on the corner of Allegheny and Linn streets. About 20 men are constantly at work preparing and laying stone and the walls of the house are rising rapidly.

A few days ago we announced that one of the old houses near the bridge on Lamb street was being torn down and now we can make the further announcement that it has disappeared and nothing but the crumbling foundation remains.

What has all the appearance of a fine new stone pavement is be seen in front of John P. Harris' residence on Linn street. What provoked us however, is that we did not see it until it was completed.

The boardwalk opposite Duncan's machine shop and the Snow Shoe coal office along the mill race should be renewed, as it is in a dilapidated condition, and there is serious danger that James Irvin will come to grief some time when he is rushing over it with a roll of bank notes in his hand or a hundred dollars in silver in his pockets. The council will please give its attention to this matter.

Workingmen, Reflect.

The following shows to what condition the Democratic party and free trade are trying to bring you:

"The inspector of police, of Leeds, England, was asked, in 1882, by Robert P. Porter, the following question:

"In your fifteen years' experience, in which your jurisdiction has extended all over the borough of Leeds, embracing, as it does, 320,000 of the most thrifty industrial population in England, did you ever know the ordinary workingman to own the house in which he lived, and the ground on which it stands—I mean the skilled artisan, the mechanic, the engineer, the carpenter, the mason, and the like?"

"If I was on my oath in court, sir," earnestly replied the inspector, "I should be obliged to answer, in my experience never!"

—Once there was a Hill of Science. It was so called partly because a flight of steps led all the way from the top, where the Bellefonte Academy stands, to the street below. Once we counted these steps, but forget the exact number. Why were these steps ever allowed to be destroyed? The fact that they were there always lent an additional charm to the Academy building. As the student ascended step after step of that stairway it was symbolic of his actual progress on the real road to knowledge. The steps should be rebuilt—solid, firm and enduring.

A Tribute of Respect.

At the last meeting of the Centre County Medical Society a committee was appointed to pay a fitting tribute of respect to the memory of Dr. G. W. Kline, deceased, late of Potter's Mills, which submitted the following report:

Resolved, That by the death of Dr. G. W. Kline this society has lost a valued member, and the profession a young physician who gave promise of a career of rare usefulness.

Resolved, That we deeply lament the early death of one whose virtues endeared him to a large circle of friends.

Resolved, That the members of this society tender to the family of the deceased their heartfelt sympathy.

Resolved, That a member of this society be appointed by the President at the next regular meeting, to prepare a brief biographical sketch of the late Dr. Kline for publication in the "Transactions of the State Medical Society."

Resolved, That these resolutions be entered upon the minutes of this society, and a copy of them be sent to the family of the deceased, and also to the county papers for publication.

J. Y. DALE,

—A bill in equity was filed in the Prothonotary's office in Philadelphia, on Monday, the 8th, wherein Michael Hayes, a contractor, brings suit against the Bald Eagle Valley Railroad Company, lessees, and the Fidelity Trust, Insurance and Safe Deposit Company, mortgagees, to collect $20,000 and interest from 1859 for work done in building a portion of the Tyrone and Lock Haven Railroad, which was afterward created into the Bald Eagle Valley Railroad by Philip M. Price, who bought the mortgage on the Tyrone and Lock Haven road of $500,000 at public sale for $21,000 from the trust company. The plaintiff claims that the sale was dishonest and prays that the Court will order that he may examine the books of the defendants. In January, 1880, the Bald Eagle Valley Railroad Company, which is leased by the Pennsylvania Railroad, gave a mortgage to the Fidelity Company for $400,000.

Politics in Milesburg.

On Monday evening, the 8th, a large Blaine and Logan Club was organized in Milesburg. More than sixty voters signed their names to the roll of membership and before the week is ended the membership will exceed one hundred. It is probable that every voter in Milesburg will join the club. Mr. J. I. Morris was elected President and George Taylor secretary. Addresses were made by the President, Mr. J. I. Morris, Mr. J. C. P. Jones and by another gentleman whose name we forget. If other towns will follow the example of Milesburg the county will give a majority for Blaine.

—Two of Tyrone's young men, says the Times, hired a horse and carriage a few evenings ago and drove down to Port Matilda, where they had business to transact, intending to return the same night. Arriving at Port, they hitched their horse, and went about in search of the parties whom they expected to meet. After about an hour's absence they returned to their conveyance and to their utter astonishment and disgust found the harness cut in a dozen different places, compelling them to use rope to tie up the harnes so as to be able to reach home.

—That somewhat rare individual in Bellefonte, the tramp, put in appearance the other day. He was a member of the craft from whence tramps originated—a printer. He wanted some exchanges and a dime, the latter to buy breakfast. We saw him a few minutes later carefully perusing the choice literature which we gave him while the smoke from a fragrant cirgar circled like incense over his head. Did his breakfast consist of a glass of beer and a cigar?

—Mrs. Margaret E. Bing, wife of Mr. William C. Bing, died in Tyrone at 9 o'clock on Sunday, the 7th, at her home. The correspondent of the Altoona Tribune, writing from Tyrone, says that deceased was a daughter of Mr. D. H. Yeager, of Snow Shoe. She leaves a husband and five children, the youngest being only 4 years of age. The funeral services occurred this morning at 10 o'clock at the home of Rev. J. S. McMurray in Tyrone.

—The Altoona Tribune records the death, a few days ago, of Mr. Krepps, of Spruce Creek. The funeral occurred on Monday, the 8th, the interment being in the graveyard in Pine Grove, this county.

—The efforts of Chairman Ryder to organize a Butler club in Altoona the other evening were not very successful. The Butler men will vote for Blaine this fall.

—De Voe, the New Jersey weather sage, predicted the present warm wave and is now in a merry mood because one of his prophesies has been fulfilled.

—Grapes seem to be abundant and are ripening rapidly.

Church Dedication.

A new Methodist Episcopal church edifice was dedicated on Sunday, September 7, ten miles north of Philipsburg, in Clearfield county. The church is free of debt. Rev. James Curns, of Clearfield, preached an impressive sermon at 10.30 o'clock in the morning and also managed the financial work of the day. In the evening Rev. W. R. Whitney, of Stormstown, Pa., and a former pastor, preached to a crowded house. The Methodists of that community are delighted to have this neat and suitable church in which to worship the God of their fathers.—Altoona Tribune.

A Noted Man.

Among the men who have made their names household words within the last half century, stands Mr. Speer, of Passaic, N. J. He is the pioneer grape grower of this country, and he has demonstrated beyond a doubt that the foreign grapes can be raised here and that as fine a wine can be produced in this country as in Europe, and for medicinal uses Mr. Speer's wine surpasses that of the old country. Ladies in delicate health, and aged people find it to be the best wine they can procure.—Winsted Argus.

—Miss Florence, daughter of Mr. I V. Gray, of Philipsburg, is quite ill with a very sore arm, the result of an accident last winter from which she never entirely recovered. She has much sympathy in her affliction.

"100 Doses One Dollar" is true only of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it is an unanswerable argument as to strength and economy.

—Several parties proceeded from this place to Penn Cave Thursda morning. Mr. Goldsmith, of the Bee Hive stores, Mr. Lyon, of Bishop street, together with several strangers, were among the number.

Terms, $2.00 per annum in Advance

Local Department.

—Fences are often pale but never sick.

—Mrs. Daniel Burrell, of Spring Mills, is recovering from recent illness.

—Houses for rent are becoming slightly more numerous in Bellefonte.

—It is said that a wedding which will prove interesting to many Bellefonte people will occur on the 30th instant.

—Two sons of Reuben Harter, one day last week, killed nineteen gray squirrels in the woods below Madisonburg.

—The Presbyterian church at Alexandria, Huntingdon county, will celebrate its hundredth anniversary on Tuesday, the 22d inst.

—Union county, in this State, has a larger number of old maids in proportion to population than any other county in the United States.

—The Clearfield Republican is disgusted with Democratic Congressional politics and goes for Messrs. Shugert and Meek in a lively manner.

—Reuben Grimm, of Madisonburg, was the first man in that vicinity to finish seeding, and he is one of the staunchest Blaine men in that section.

—Lock Haven is threatened with a water famine, One of the two reservoirs supplying the city with water is empty and the other only about two thirds full.

—Fifty-eight chickens disappeared from the collection in the possession of Mr. Benj. Weiser, of near Coburn, during only one night some time ago. As a consequence, Mr. W. is mad.

—There are very few skaters on the Bellefonte rink who can glide around more gracefully than Will Curtin. He is especially proficient in the waltz step which is acknowledged to be quite difficult.

—George Nicely, a son of Mr. Hunter Nicely, of East High street, had his arm broken on Friday morning last while at work at Jackson's mine bank. In some way he fell from a table on his arm with the above result.

—That long, circular, pillar like stone in Chas. Heisler's restaurant window attracts attention. It is one of the "cores" made by a "Diamond Drill" and was taken from a Snow Shoe mine at a depth of over 900 feet below the surface.

—We much regret to record the death on Sunday morning of an infant son of Mr. John Harris, the druggist, who resides on High street The little one was ten months old. The funeral services took place on Tuesday at 2 o'clock p. m.

—The Millheim Journal is invited to inform its numerous readers in its next issue that Blaine's majority in Maine was 20,000, and also that at this time four years ago the Democrats carried Maine by a small majority—hence the great victory.

—Mr. C. H. Struble, of College township, will have about 1500 bushels of apples this year. If he would distribute them around every man, woman and child in the county could eat apple dumplings each day for a week. But we don't suppose he intends to do that.

—There was almost a serious fire in Milesburg on Saturday at the home of Mr. Lew Felton. A small boy was playing with fire which ignited with some clothing hanging in a closet, and several dresses and other articles of apparel were destroyed. Fortunately, the flames were extinguished before doing further damage.

—One consequence of the advent of cool weather will probably be the change of female apparel from the beautiful and becoming white dresses which have been so popular this season into some colored fabrics which will be less handsome. We shall regret to see the change as a lady never appears to greater advantage than when arrayed in white.

—Our friends of the Watchman have not yet heard the news from Maine, as they do not refer to it in their issue last week. The readers of that journal will not be kept in ignorance of the real facts, however, as the railroad now penetrates nearly all parts of Centry county and other sources of information are accessible.

—The pleasures of a birthday party, held in Centre Hall the other evening, were interrupted by the disappearance of all the ice cream which was to have formed a principal part of the refreshments. Some of the peculiarly brilliant specimens of Young America in that neighborhood are supposed to have feasted on it.

The McGahey Trial in Clearfield.

The Bellefonte public became interested in all that concerns the name of McGahey during the latter part of last May when that gentleman was arrested in this place and afterwards spirited away to Clearfield county in charge of Messrs. Goodfellow and Montgomery. Another step in his legal vicissitudes occurred in the Clearfield county court last week.

In the case of the Commonwealth vs. J. C. McGahey, J. L. Spangler, Esq., and Col. D. H. Hastings appeared for the defendant, and Hon. J. H. Orvis, Thomas Murray, Esq., and Frank Snyder, Esq., for the Commonwealth, together with the District Attorney of Clearfield county.

The private counsel for the Commonwealth, on Wednesday of court, presented a petition to Court, alleging that private counsel differed with Dist. Att'y McHendrick in the manner of conducting the trial and for that reason asked the Court for the appointment of a special district attorney to make the necessary change in their case. T. H. Murray, Esq., one of the private counsel for the Commonwealth, was appointed special district attorney for this case.

The indictment was submitted to the Grand Jury, which returned a true bill, charging the crime of felonious arson and burning of a store building, for the purpose of defrauding the insurance companies, against McGahey, Emma Smead and Lillie Swartz. The two last named defendants had not been under recognizance to appear at that court, they having been arrested some months previous for the same offense and discharged by Judge Krebs on a habeas corpus. The Commonwealth asked for a bench warrant for the arrest of Mrs. Smead and Lillie Swartz, whereupon Messrs. Spangler and Hastings objected to the issuing of such warrant until after argument on the power and authority of the court to give out such a warrant, under the circumstances.

Judge Krebs appointed Wednesday evening for the argument. His Honor announced that, in addition to hearing an argument on the power and authority of Court to issue a bench warrant for two of the defendants, he would also hear arguments on a motion to quash, by receiving exceptions to the indictment in this case. Counsel for the defendants then filed seven exceptions, two of which were sustained by the Court. Judge Krebs will file his opinion in a few days, and it is looked for with interest.

Political Truths.

We do not believe that our excellent candidate for Sheriff, Mr. H. G. Royer, of Wolf's Store, will be at all disturbed by the item in Friday morning's Watchman denying his popularity and excellent prospects for election. Mr. Royer is one of the most esteemed citizens of that section and is a tower of strength to what is already an exceptionally strong ticket. The Democrats are much frightened at the result of their hasty action in the nomination of Miles Walker—hence their last expiring effort to change the opinions of the people.

Then how fearfully and wonderfully they are exercised over the bolt against their candidates for Assembly, Woodward and Rhone. These two gentlemen put together in a bag and shaken up could not compare intellectually with our candidate, J. G. Love, Esq., and their candidacy does not awaken one tithe of the enthusiasm that attaches to the name of either Allison or Love. The neighbors of Mr. Wm. M. Allison say that he is, in every respect, one of the most excellent citizens of that section and just the man to send to the Legislature. Indeed, they say he is so incomparably better than his competitor that they will give him a majority.

As to the Democratic Congressional nomination, the entire district is agitated on the subject. They don't care to see that position monopolized by Centre county talent, while Centre county Democrats apprehend the most serious results if the present incumbent is defeated for the renomination. We pity the present condition of Democratic county politics as well as we do their condition in the State and Nation.

Gov. Curtin to Preside.

The magnificent statue erected to the memory of General Reynolds will be unveiled in the city of Philadelphia on Thursday of next week, the 18th. The reunion of the Pennsylvania Reserve Association will be held in that city at the time and the military order of the Loyal Legion and numerous other organized bodies will be present. Ex-Gov. Curtin has been invited to preside and has consented. Gov. Pattison will make the presentation on behalf of the State. All soldiers throughout the State who expect to participate will be given the advantage of reduced fare.

A Judicial Conference.

The following quoted paragraphs in relation to the judicial conference in this district are from the Altoona Tribune:

"The conferees of the Forty-ninth judicial district, composed of Huntingdon and Centre counties convened in Tyrone on Friday. The conferees are Hon. David Blair, T. S. Johnson and Frank W. Stewart, of Huntingdon county, and Col. D. H. Hastings, Col. J. A. Coburn and E. C. Humes, of Centre county. The conventions of the counties have placed A. O. Furst, Esq., of Bellefonte, and K. Allen Lovell, Esq., of Huntingdon as candidates of the Republican voters of the respective counties. The conference was organized by the selection of Hon. David Blair, of Huntingdon, as president, and Col. D. H. Hastings and T. S. Johnson as secretaries. Four ballots were taken, each resulting as follows: Furst 3, Lovell 3. The conferees then adjourned to this city and after their arrival here six ballots were taken at the Logan house with the same result. The conference then adjourned to meet at Tyrone this morning at 8 o'clock at which time and place the candidates have been asked to be in attendance.

"While the conferees were in this city they paid the Tribune office a visit. They were accompanied by D. S. Keller and L. L. Lrown of Bellefonte who had come along to take note of the proceedings. They are all agreeable gentlemen and the Tribune will be pleased to see them any time they may visit the city."

We understand that Mr. Keller returned Saturday morning and that A. O. Furst, Esq., the Centre county candidate, went to Tyrone. The following dispatch was received here at 10.30 o'clock:

TYRONE, September 13, 1884.—Conference still in deadlock Twenty ballots taken, ending 3 for Furst (Centre), and 3 for Lovell (Huntingdon). At it to-day again.

Bucktail Post Anniversary.

The organization of the G. A. R., in Renovo, known as Bucktail Post, No 142, are making extensive preparations to celebrate their fifth anniversary, which occurs on Wednesday, the 24th. As a large delegation of that Post was in attendance at the encampment here and, we believe, were the first to arrive on the morning train, on Saturday, the 16th ult., probably some members of the Centre county G. A. R. will go to help the Bucktails celebrate. The Record, of that place, gives the programme as follows:

The Bucktail Post has secured the use of the large circus tent of the Milesburg Post, which will be erected on the base ball grounds and will have a seating capacity for upwards of 1,500 people.

From the committee of arrangements we learn that special invitations have been extended to the Grand Army Posts along the line of the P. & E. railroad between Philadelphia and Erie, from which delegations are expected to be present.

The following distinguished comrades have signified their intention of being present and will take a prominent part in the celebration: Past Dept. Comd's. Wagner, Vanderslice, Beath, Taylor, Dyer, Curtin, A. A. Thos. J. Stewart, Gen. Beaver, Andrew G. Curtin and others.

The programme for the celebration is announced as follows:

Parade at 11.30 a. m.

Bean soup for G. A. R. comrades and ex-soldiers at 12 m.

Picnic and dancing from 2 to 6 p. m.

Camp fire from 7.30 to 9.30.

Dancing will commence at 9.30 sharp.

The Post will endeavor to get excursion rates for all who wish to participate.

The following gentlemen compose the committee of arrangements: R. W. Flower, chairman, Chas. F. Unkle, U. S. N. Crouse, John Weaver, J. J. Billow, H. C. Long, James Hutchison.

Drilling for Water.

Out at the works of the Steam Heating Company they are boring for water and have been engaged at the work since May last. They "struck" water some time ago and now at a depth of 90 feet have it in almost sufficient quantities to meet their needs. They will not drill much deeper lest sand may be encountered after which it is impossible to state how much deeper it will be necessary to go to again reach rock. The work is costly and will reach $1,000.

The steam drill is used. It is operated by steam power and strikes the rock with the force of—well, we forget how many tons; but it grinds it to powder. The "Diamond Drill," often used for this purpose, bores into the solid rock and removes the rock in pieces, or "cores," as they are called. The work of drilling is said to be quite interesting.

—The residence of Joseph Emerick, between Nittany Hall and Hublersburg, caught fire early Monday morning and was burned to the ground with all its contents. The residence was thoroughly and comfortably furnished, and burning of both house and furniture will be a serious loss to Mr. Emerick, particularly as there was no insurance on it. We did not hear the origin of the fire.

Death of Jacob C. Walker.

MILESBURG, Sept. 13, '84.

MR. EDITOR:—The pall of death has again been spread over our community in the decease of Jacob C. Walker, which indeed has saddened many hearts. Mr. W. was as active, energetic man in every thing he found to do, and his chief delight seemed to be to do right. On account of his natural activity and willingness, he found much to do in every sphere in which he moved—socially, religiously and politically. Being, as he was, respected by his many friends—the object of their affection—he sought to make all around him comfortable; seeking more particularly to elevate and benfit them in a moral point of view through the Sabbath-school and church of which he was a member for many years, and where his removal will be severely felt. He served many years in the various offices of trust in the township in which he lived, discharging his duties as faithfully as he could. He was a member and leader in the United Brethren church and liberal in his support of the same by giving his prayers, his time and his money. He leaves an aged and devoted wife, the partner of his joys and sorrows, one son, and three daughters, together with their families and a large connection of relations to mourn his departure from among them. His death was caused by the effects of an attack of cholera murbus about twelve days ago, and he breathed his last on the morning of the 10th day of September, A. D. 1884, at the age of four days less than 71 years. His remains were buried in the Messiah church cemetery, and his funeral conducted by Rev. Hummel, assisted by Rev. Zeigler, in the presence of a large concourse of sympathizing friends. X.

—A. O. Furst, Esq., was nominated for President Judge of the 49th judicial district (Centre and Huntingdon) at about 3 o'clock on Saturday afternoon. The dispatch announcing this very welcome result of the judicial conference arrived at too late an hour on Saturday afternoon for insertion in the NEWS of that date. His opponent for the nomination, K. Allen Lovell, Esq., of Huntingdon, is a gentleman of high character and great personal strength, and therefore the choice of Mr. Furst is the more pronounced testimonial to his remarkable qualifications for the position to which he will certainly be elected. Democrats and Republicans acknowledge that Mr. Furst is the most learned, able and eloquent member of the bar in either county, and it will be a credit and honor to the district to elevate him to the position, which his talents and eminent worth will so gracefully adorn. The election of a judge should not be a question of politics at all. The most worthy aspirant for the position should be the unanimous choice of the people regardless of party affiliations, and it would be an act creditable to Democracy, in view of the excellent choice of the judicial conference, to endorse the candidacy of Mr. Furst and thus do their part in still further elevating the high standing which the bench of Centre county has almost uniformly maintained.

Died.

ADAMS.—At the residence of Jonathan Hess, in Pine Grove Mills, on Wednesday morning, September 10, Vergia E. Adams, infant granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Major Geo. H. Stover, of Versailles, Morgan county, Missouri, aged 9 months and 20 days.

This event was rendered more sad by the fact that the little one died while visiting with her grandparents at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hess—so far away from her own home. Mr. and Mrs. Stover were formerly residents of Aaronsburg, in this county, but are now residents of Missouri. Cholera infantum, the scourge of infancy, was the fatal disease. The funeral occurred at 3.30 o'clock on Thursday afternoon, and the little body was temporarily interred in the cemetery at Pine Grove, with the expectation of removing it to the West in the near future.

—A few minutes before 10 o'clock last Thursday morning Mr. D. V. Rider and Miss M. E. McClintic, of Buffalo Run, whose marriage is announced elsewhere, alighted from their conveyance and entered the Lutheran parsonage to be made one. The ceremony was soon solemnized. Among those who saw them and was interested was our reporter and he was the next person to enter said parsonage after an item.

—A newspaper item designated Port Matilda as the town and the stables in charge of Mine Host Jonas Stetler the place where the three rigs from Tyrone were malaciously cut and damaged a few days ago. The story is incorrect, however, and it transpires that the affair occurred near Hannah Furnace.
